Drug Policing Moves Urged By Dr. Kelsey

Official Who Kept Thalidomide Off U.S. Market Testifies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Testimony Monday by Dr. Frances Kelsey apparently strengthened President Kennedy's chances of getting at least some added governmental powers to police the use of new drugs.

She urged that Congress arm the federal government with the authority requested by Kennedy and described to the Senate Judiciary Committee possible dangerous and unexpected side effects of some medicines.

Dr. Kelsey is the government medical official who is credited with preventing the marketing in this country of the drug thalidomide, blamed for the malformations of thousands of babies in Europe.

Closed Session

The Senate committee met in closed session to hear her views on Kennedy's long list of proposed amendments to a measure sponsored by Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn.

Later Dr. Kelsey declined to discuss her testimony in detail with newsmen but said she believes the original Kefauver proposal had been emasculated by some committee amendments. She added that she is not competent to testify on all of Kennedy's proposals but in general agrees with them.

She was accompanied by George P. Larrick, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, for which Dr. Kelsey works as a medical officer. Larrick told newsmen he endorses the entire list of Kennedy amendments but is not the author of them all.

Some Opposition

Discussions in the meeting, Kefauver said, showed some opposition to the President's proposals. But he said the session was amicable and the outlook for approval of the proposals is good "provided we don't get bogged down in long hearings."

Kefauver said he may try to head off such delays by offering a separate bill to embrace some of the more controversial proposals made by Kennedy. Major controversy, he said, is expected to surround the President's proposals to tighten policing of over-the-counter drugs, which may be sold without prescription.

Meat Rationed In Red Germany

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's Communist regime announced Monday introduction of customer lists—a form of rationing—for meat and sausage.

No mention was made of what quantities would be handed out. Western experts expect the amounts to vary, with some East Germans getting less than a half a pound and others more than a pound a week.

Under the customer-list system, each consumer must register with a single shop. He gets his share of whatever the shop has on hand. No sales are made to unregistered customers.

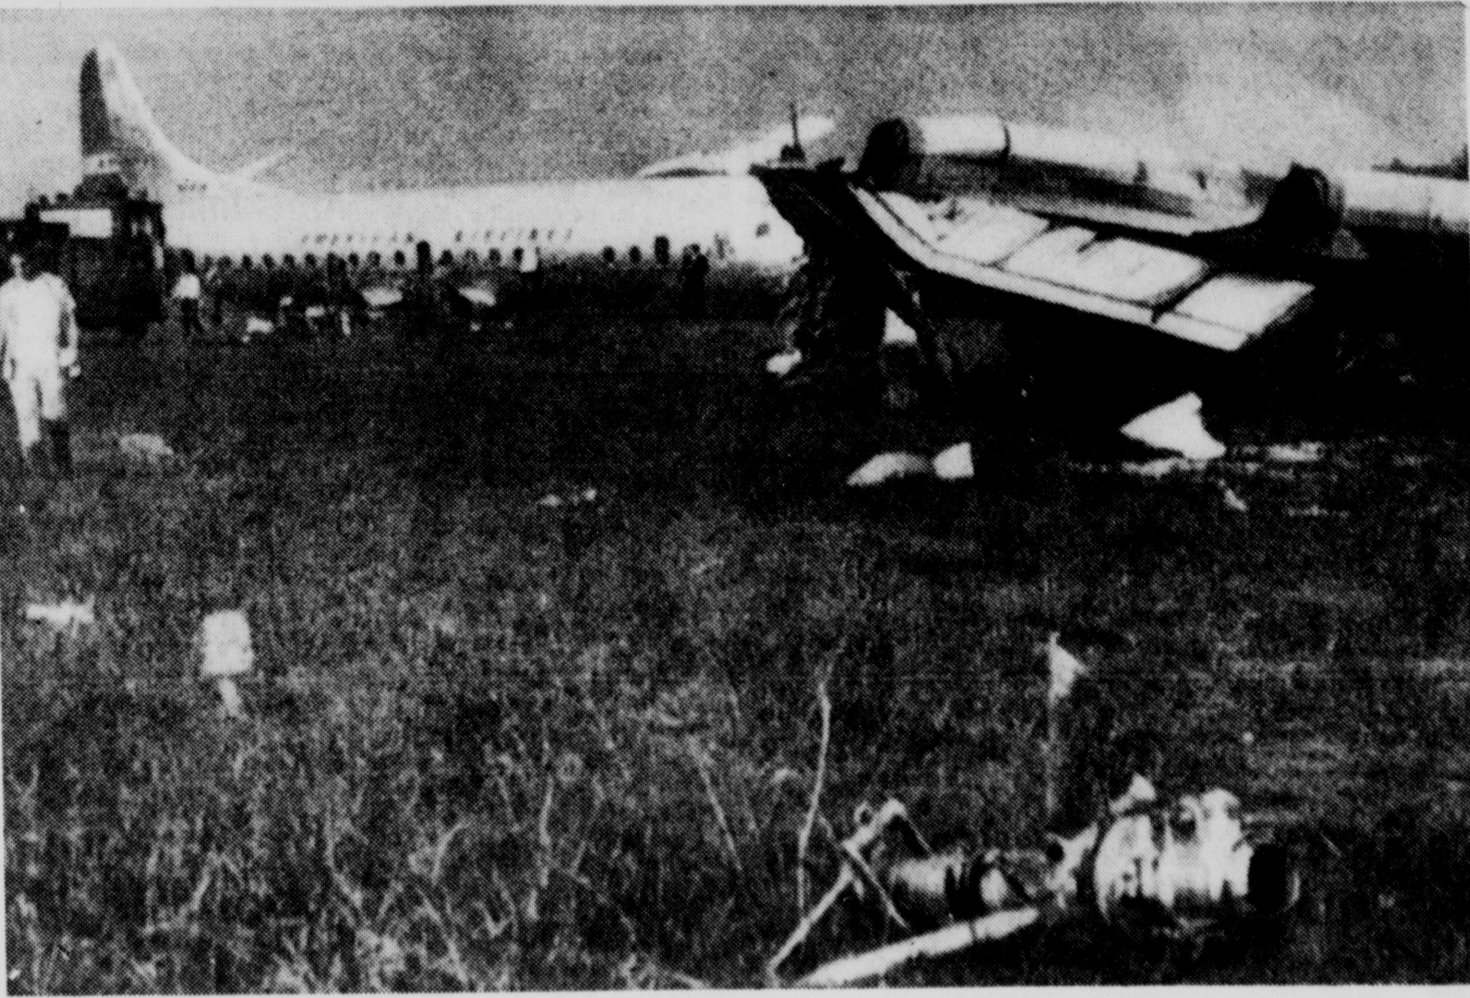

Announcement of the action came in the form of a one-paragraph item by ADN, the official East German news agency.

"It has been shown," said ADN, "that this measure is in general favorably accepted by the population since it has led to a more just and regular supply of meat and sausage, especially to the working population."

The meat shortage in East Germany is generally attributed to last year's bad harvest.

No One Hurt In Crash-Landing Of Airliner

Miraculously, none of the 70 persons aboard this American Airlines four-engine turboprop plane was injured yesterday when a gust of wind blew it off the runway and it cracked up while trying to land in a violent thunderstorm at McGhee-Tyson air-

King Forecasts Albany Victory For Integration

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Jailed integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said Monday he was "very hopeful and very encouraged" over the long-range outlook for resolving Albany's racial problems.

Looking through cell bars, King said in an exclusive jail interview that he believes a four-pronged desegregation program now taking shape means "Albany can never be the same again."

"I believe firmly that in the next few months, with all of our methods at work, we will see one of the most vigorous assaults on segregation ever undertaken in the South," King said.

The desegregation attack has these fronts: Economic improvement, legal action, voter registration, and direct action in the form of demonstrations.

King, lying on an upper bunk in a small cell, wore pajamas. A transistor radio lay beside him. His cellmate, the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, sat on a lower bunk reading The New York Times.

Each man has a two-tiered bunk, using the upper bunk for sleeping and the lower for paper work.

Both the ministers face trial Friday in Recorder's Court for participating in a prayer vigil at City Hall 11 days ago. They are charged with disorderly conduct, congregating on the sidewalk, and refusing to obey an officer.

"After the trial things will be determined," King said. "I can't say right now when I will leave. That will depend on the trial and the turn of events."

"My inclination now is to serve the time if I am sentenced. This is not a final decision because I will be controlled by events that may take place—such as good-faith negotiations between the City Commission and local Negro leaders."

King has refused to gain freedom, although he could do so by posting $200 bond. He has said: "It is a matter of conscience because hundreds of Negroes have been jailed for demonstrating since December. Albany cannot continue to buy time and to evade that which cannot be evaded."

King said he would like to see the Albany situation resolved peacefully, but he would not be deterred by the possibility of a violent outcome.

Marilyn's Funeral Set For Tomorrow

Suicide-Or-Accident Debate Continues

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The film capital was faced Monday with the final mystery in the legend of the fabulous Marilyn Monroe—was her death an accident or suicide?

The question was debated by friends and coworkers and by physicians and psychiatrists trying to fix the cause of the blonde star's death late Saturday night. She was found nude in her bed, an empty sleeping pill bottle nearby.

Her body was to be released to Inez Nelson, conservator of the estate of the actress' mother, Gladys Baker Eley, last reported a mental patient in a home in nearby La Crescenta.

Earlier, the coroner's office had received a telegram from Miss Monroe's half-sister, Bernice Miracle, Gainesville, Fla., authorizing Joe DiMaggio to claim the body. The baseball great, second husband and still friendly with the star at her death, did not appear.

Later, the body was transferred to Westwood Village Mortuary in West Los Angeles, not far from the Brentwood home where the actress died.

A mortuary spokesman said private funeral services have been set for 1 p.m. Wednesday at the mortuary, with interment in nearby Westwood Memorial Park.

Coroner Theodore Curphey appointed a "suicide team" of psychiatrists to study the evidence of Miss Monroe's last weeks and hours.

"Her death definitely was not from natural causes," said Dr. Curphey. He made the presumption that she had died from overdose of some drug but added, "This may not be a physical suicide."

She may have done it by just taking an overdose of pills without realizing it."

The 90-minute autopsy disclosed she "had no diseases in any organs." But further conclusions awaited toxicological tests to determine what drug and how much of it may have caused death. Results may be known Tuesday.

Among the items of physical evidence: An empty bottle marked nembutal it had been filled with 40 to 50 capsules three days before. The condition of the bedroom—bare, not in keeping with what might be expected of a glamorous movie star.

The condition of her person—"Not emaciated," reported the autopsy surgeon, but indicating "gross lack of care."

The absence of a note, but, said a member of the suicide team, notes are left by less than 40 percent of suicides.

The psychological aspects will also be studied: Her troubled childhood; three broken marriages; a history of mental illness in the family, including her mother and maternal grandparents; psychiatric treatment in recent years; despondency over being fired from a movie.

The Rev. George Lawrence and Dr. Thomas Kilgore, both of New York and leaders of the group, said they had presented their demands to Kennedy administration officials in a 30-minute session in the garden outside Kennedy's office. They were told that some of the things they want are under consideration and some are not.

"No specific commitments were made," Lawrence said.

The ministers, from six Eastern states, were not entirely satisfied, and they trooped back outside to hold a public prayer session in front of the executive mansion.

Already parading were representatives of American Nazis with placards condemning racial integration and a group calling for a ban on nuclear weapons.

The ministers, who said they represented Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths, indicated that some of their number are considering a trip to Albany, Ga., where hundreds of Negroes have been arrested in demonstrations against segregation.

In answer to a question about such a trip, Lawrence said, "I'm sure there will be opposition, and we will meet it with full force."

The AEC also said in an announcement that Sunday's big blast—detected Sunday's big blast—the second largest in history—estimated its power at an equivalent of 40 million tons of TNT.

But the AEC's statement said "the probable yield is estimated to have been of the order of a magnitude of 30 megatons."

The largest blast in history was Russia's giant 55-plus megaton explosion that came at the end of the Soviet testing series last fall.

In declaring that other tests may have been conducted before Sunday's 30-megaton shot, the AEC said indications were that they were in the low kiloton area.

"What a pity," said Mrs. Cavaliere. "I just wanted to be kind to Mrs. Kennedy. I had already bought the American anthem on a record. Well, I will shout 'Good night!' to Mrs. Kennedy every night, just the same."

Mrs. Cavaliere's problem was representative of a situation rapidly coming to climax in this tourist-jammed village 1,000 feet above the bright blue waters of Salerno Bay.

Mrs. Kennedy and her 4-year-old daughter, Caroline, are due here by plane Wednesday for a two-week stay with Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill.

Ministers Take Racial Appeal To White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred crusading ministers marched to the White House Monday to dramatize their request that President Kennedy take a more militant stand against racial discrimination.

The demonstration was scheduled to coincide with "prayer vigils" in major cities throughout the country, called on to rally moral support for hundreds of Negroes who have been arrested in a racial struggle in Albany, Ga.

The ministers, most of them Negroes, urged that President Kennedy make a television speech against racial discrimination.

They did not get to see the President, but they said they had received a sympathetic reception from government officials.

The Rev. George Lawrence and Dr. Thomas Kilgore, both of New York and leaders of the group, said they had presented their demands to Kennedy administration officials in a 30-minute session in the garden outside Kennedy's office. More Drastic Railroad Rule Changes Set

Carriers Will Put Original Demands In Effect Aug. 16

CHICAGO (UPI) —The nation's railroads junked plans Monday to put a presidential commission's recommendations into effect Aug. 16 and said they would slap more drastic work rules changes on 200,000 on-train employees to end "this unconscionable featherbedding problem."

A railroad attorney announced the strategy switch at the close of a federal court hearing on five operating brotherhoods' petition for an injunction barring the carriers from making the Presidential Railroad Commission's recommendations effective next week.

Railroad attorney Howard Neitzert said the railroads were serving notice they would put into effect their original "anti-featherbedding" demands of Nov. 2, 1959, rather than those demands as modified by the presidential commission.

Railroad spokesmen said they took the action for just one reason—to get the long and bitter work rules case out of court and avoid prolonged litigation.

J. E. Wolfe, chief railroad negotiator, indicated the railroads hoped their move would dump the controversy back on the doorstep of the White House.

"If the suit is dismissed," Wolfe told a news conference, "we believe the President on his own initiative will appoint an emergency board."

Wolfe noted two chief provisions in which the railroad demands of 1959 were more stringent than their demands of last month based on commission recommendations.

Under the 1959 notices, the railroads would be free to dismiss immediately all 41,000 firemen on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service.

Pranksters Paint "PT 109" On Bow Of Rocky's Yacht

SEAL HARBOR, Maine (AP)—One morning last week New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's 80-foot cabin cruiser "Dragon Lady" suddenly looked much like a now well-known World War II Navy patrol boat.

The yacht, moored at the Republican governor's summer residence here, resembles a Navy patrol boat anyway. But to add to the similarity the identification "PT 109" appeared on both sides of the bow in two-foot high figures.

"PT 109" was the designation of the torpedo boat commanded during World War II by President Kennedy.

Police said the letters and numbers were applied in whitewash by Edward Nash Crofoot, 18, a Mount Desert Island summer resident, and another youth whose name was not given because of diplomatic immunity from arrest.

The pranksters rowed out to the moored boat in the dead of night. Crofoot paid a $10 fine Friday in Ellsworth Municipal Court after pleading guilty to a malicious mischief charge.

Soviets Rebuff U.S. Test Ban Concessions

GENEVA (AP) —The Soviet Union shrugged off Monday new Western concessions for ending nuclear tests even before the United States could submit them to the 17-nation disarmament conference.

Thus the outlook was bleak for the new plan, which Washington had hoped might get the test ban treaty rolling again. No progress on the conference's problem of general disarmament is likely until the nuclear issue is out of the way.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean told the 66th session of the conference that the resumption of Soviet nuclear tests Sunday made the need for a test ban treaty even more urgent.

After high-level talks in Washington, Dean returned to Geneva with the new proposals. He discussed them Sunday and again Monday with Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin.

Zorin informed the delegates that on the basis of his preliminary impressions the new Western plan does not look promising.

He said that from what he had already learned from informal talks with Dean, the Western proposals offered no hope for progress toward a test ban agreement with the United States and Britain.

Zorin said they appear to be based on the same American proposals which his government has refused to accept.

This appeared to be a reference to Western insistence on some inspection in the Soviet Union to prevent cheating.

Dean told the delegates he will not give them the new Western offers immediately, but will wait until he has discussed them more completely with Zorin and with the subcommittee on nuclear testing. This is composed of three nuclear powers, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union.

The concessions, awaited by the conference's neutral bloc, were announced in broad outline by President Kennedy at a news conference last week.

Quick Senate Action Asked By Secretary

Official Declares Measure Protects Policy Interests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Monday the administration bill for a privately owned communications satellite system is "fully adequate to protect the foreign policy interests of the United States."

The State Department chief thus lined up with President Kennedy, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and other administration officials in support of the embattled measure.

Edward R. Murrow, director of the U.S. Information Agency, also backed the bill. But Murrow said his agency might not be able to afford the proposed new system on its present budget, unless the government receives special rates.

Both officials testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Rusk urged speedy action on the bill, which passed the House and won approval of two other Senate committees only to run into a filibuster on the Senate floor.

"There is unquestionably an advantage for the United States in moving rapidly to establish an effective system in which other nations may participate and which, we may hope, will have global coverage," Rusk told the committee.

Taking issue with Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and other opponents of private ownership, Rusk said:

"The policy questions involved in this bill have been carefully considered within the administration. There is no reason to suppose that they would be more wisely decided if this (legislative) process were extended to another year."

No Impairment

"The fact that the corporation will be owned and the capital supplied by private companies and individuals will not impair the ability of the United States to co-operate successfully with other countries and international organizations in establishing a global communications system," Rusk declared.

Murrow testified that the national interest demands that the USA use the new space era system because of its impact around the globe.

But if his agency is to use space communications, he said, it must seek one of three things: special reduced rates, more money from Congress, or a separate system to handle government business.

Soviet Resumed Testing Before Sunday's Blast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Monday that the Soviet Union apparently conducted some smaller atmospheric nuclear tests before detonating its superbomb on Sunday.

The AEC also said in an announcement that Sunday's giant blast probably had 30 megatons of power rather than the 40 megatons previously estimated by Swedish scientists.

The AEC said "there are indications that the Soviet Union had resumed atmospheric nuclear testing a few days prior to the nuclear detonation announced as having occurred at Novaya Zemlya on Aug. 5."

Scientists at Uppsala, Sweden, detected Sunday's big blast—the second largest in history—and estimated its power at an equivalent of 40 million tons of TNT.

But the AEC's statement said "the probable yield is estimated to have been of the order of a magnitude of 30 megatons."

The largest blast in history was Russia's giant 55-plus megaton explosion that came at the end of the Soviet testing series last fall.

In declaring that other tests may have been conducted before Sunday's 30-megaton shot, the AEC said indications were that they were in the low kiloton area.

AF Man, Three Others Killed In Plane Crash

MINGAN, Que. (UPI)—A United States Air Force non-commissioned officer and three other persons were killed Monday in the crash of a light plane near Mingan Airport. A fifth person was injured critically.

The plane was piloted by S Sgt. Adrian La Point, 29, of the 42nd Bomb Wing at Loring Air Force Base in Maine. The single-engine Navion belonged to the Aeroclub, a group of airman at Loring AFB who fly for pleasure in off duty hours.

More Drastic Railroad Rule Changes Set

Carriers Will Put Original Demands In Effect Aug. 16

CHICAGO (UPI) — The nation's railroads junked plans Monday to put a presidential commission's recommendations into effect Aug. 16 and said they would slap more drastic work rules changes on 200,000 on-train employees to end "this unconscionable featherbedding problem."

A railroad attorney announced the strategy switch at the close of a federal court hearing on five operating "brotherhoods' petition for an injunction barring the carriers from making the Presidential Railroad Commission's recommendations effective next week.

Railroad attorney Howard Neitzert said the railroads were serving notice they would put into effect their original "anti-featherbedding" demands of Nov. 2, 1959, rather than those demands as modified by the presidential commission.

Railroad spokesmen said they took the action for just one reason—to get the long and bitter work rules case out of court and avoid prolonged litigation.

J. E. Wolfe, chief railroad negotiator, indicated the railroads hoped their move would dump the controversy back on the doorstep of the White House.

"If the suit is dismissed," Wolfe told a news conference, "we believe the President on his own initiative will appoint an emergency board."

Wolfe noted two chief provisions in which the railroad demands of 1959 were more stringent than their demands of last month based on commission recommendations.

Under the 1959 notices, the railroads would be free to dismiss immediately all 41,000 firemen on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service. The work rules which the carriers had planned to make effective Aug. 16 (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Pranksters Paint 'PT 109' On Bow Of Rocky's Yacht

SEAL HARBOR, Maine (AP)—One morning last week New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's 80-foot cabin cruiser "Dragon Lady" suddenly looked much like a now well-known World War II Navy patrol boat.

The yacht, moored at the Republican governor's summer residence here, resembles a Navy patrol boat anyway. But to add to the similarity the identification "PT 109" appeared on both sides of the bow in two-foot high figures.

"PT 109" was the designation of the torpedo boat commanded during World War II by President Kennedy.

Police said the letters and numerals were applied in whitewash by Edward Nash Crofoot, 18, a Mount Desert Island summer resident, and another youth whose name was not given because of diplomatic immunity from arrest.

The pranksters rowed out to the moored boat in the dead of night. Crofoot paid a $10 fine Friday in Ellsworth Municipal Court after pleading guilty to a malicious mischief charge.

In answer to a question about such a trip, Lawrence said, "I'm sure there will be opposition, and we will meet it with full force."

Airliner Crash-Lands; None Of 70 Aboard Hurt

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—An American Airlines Electra crash-landed as it came in to McGhee-Tyson Airport during a rainstorm Monday, but American Airlines said no one was injured.

The airline said 65 passengers and a crew of five were aboard the plane, Flight 414, en route from Dallas to New York.

A call was put out for ambulances from nearby towns before it was announced that there were no injuries.

Reports from the scene said the plane tipped a wing as it landed.

Harlan P. Hollack, Knoxville manager for American, said the plane crashed on its final approach before reaching the end of the runway.

Soviets Rebuff U.S. Test Ban Concessions

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union shrugged off Monday new Western concessions for ending nuclear tests even before the United States could submit them to the 17-nation disarmament conference.

Thus the outlook was bleak for the new plan, which Washington had hoped might get the test ban treaty talks rolling again. No progress on the conference's problem of general disarmament is likely until the nuclear issue is out of the way.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean told the 66th session of the conference that the resumption of Soviet nuclear tests Sunday made the need for a test ban treaty even more urgent.

After high-level talks in Washington, Dean returned to Geneva with the new proposals. He discussed them Sunday and again Monday with Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin.

Zorin informed the delegates that on the basis of his preliminary impressions the new Western plan does not look promising.

He said that from what he had already learned from informal talks with Dean, the Western proposals offered no hope for progress toward a test ban agreement with the United States and Britain.

Zorin said they appear to be based on the same American proposals which his government has refused to accept.

This appeared to be a reference to Western insistence on some inspection in the Soviet Union to prevent cheating.

Dean told the delegates he will not give them the new Western offers immediately, but will wait until he has discussed them more completely with Zorin and with the subcommittee on nuclear testing. This is composed of three nuclear powers, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union.

The concessions, awaited by the conference's neutral bloc, were announced in broad outline by President Kennedy at a news conference last week.

Kennedy said the Western powers are willing to drop their insistence on international teams manning nuclear detection centers in the Soviet Union, provided Moscow agrees to on-site inspections by foreign observers.

The United Nations' latest account of collections showed that Libya paid $33,664 last month in full settlement of its bill for that purpose, dating back to July 14, 1960, when the force was established. A U.N. source said El Salvador last week paid $12,108 in settlement of its 1960 Congo bill.

Libya's payment came through on July 20. That was the day the International Court of Justice in The Hague gave an advisory opinion that all U.N. members were obligated to help pay U.N. Congo and Middle East peacekeeping expenses just the same as regularly budgeted expenses.

Two Holdouts Settle U.N. Congo Accounts

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Two of the 57 countries that have not paid anything toward the upkeep of the U.N. force in the Congo were disclosed Monday to have started paying in recent weeks. They were Libya and El Salvador.

Quick Senate Action Asked By Secretary

Official Declares Measure Protects Policy Interests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Monday the administration bill for a privately owned communications satellite system is "fully adequate to protect the foreign policy interests of the United States."

The State Department chief thus lined up with President Kennedy, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and other administration officials in support of the embattled measure.

Edward R. Murrow, director of the U.S. Information Agency, also backed the bill. But Murrow said his agency might not be able to afford the proposed new system on its present budget, unless the government receives special rates.

Speedy Action Urged

Both officials testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Rusk urged speedy action on the bill, which passed the House and won approval of two other Senate committees only to run into a filibuster on the Senate floor.

"There is unquestionably an advantage for the United States in moving rapidly to establish an effective system in which other nations may participate and which, we may hope, will have global coverage," Rusk told the committee.

Taking issue with Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and other opponents of private ownership, Rusk said:

"The policy questions involved in this bill have been carefully considered within the administration. There is no reason to suppose that they would be more wisely decided if this (legislative) process were extended to another year."

No Impairment

"The fact that the corporation will be owned and the capital supplied by private companies and individuals will not impair the ability of the United States to cooperate successfully with other countries and international organizations in establishing a global communications system," Rusk declared.

Murrow testified that the national interest demands that the USA use the new space era system because of its impact around the globe.

But if his agency is to use space communications, he said, it must seek one of three things: special reduced rates, more money from Congress, or a separate system to handle government business.

EAL To Resume More Flights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stricken Eastern Air Lines announced Monday it will resume some of its daily non-stop jet flights on Thursday, along with shuttle service between Washington, New York and Boston.

Eastern President Malcolm A. MacIntyre said the company had reached an agreement with the Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) to operate its jets with three-man crews.

The airline also said enough of its striking flight engineers have returned to work to allow expansion of service it resumed in spite of the walkout.

MacIntyre's announcement came after Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg pulled out of the Eastern dispute which the engineers have been on strike for 45 days.

'Mac' On Spot Over Market

LONDON (AP)—A two-month postponement of Britain's bid to join the Common Market handed Prime Minister Harold Macmillan the delicate task of maintaining the thin support he has now for entering the thriving trade bloc.

With support from West Germany, the government strove to put the best face possible on the postponement, reportedly brought on by French resistance to any concessions to some British Commonwealth partners.

A high government source denied reports from Common Market quarters in Brussels that negotiations for Britain's membership had broken down.

He said the Brussels talks have progressed to a point where the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference opening Sept. 10 will have an opportunity to consider a wide range of Common Market problems.

Deputy Foreign Secretary Edward Heath and ministers of the Common Market members—Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands—talked for 17 straight hours before ending their meeting Sunday in Brussels. Their deputies will meet the middle of September and the ministers themselves will assemble again in Brussels in early October.

Potomac River Compact Wins House Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House approved Monday a Potomac River Fisheries Compact between Maryland and Virginia.

The House-approved measure, which now goes to the Senate, would grant the consent of Congress to the compact—a final step in settlement of years of litigation and oyster wars.

The compact would create the Potomac River Fisheries Commission with three members from each state and with powers to regulate fisheries in the Potomac.

The two-state agreement would substitute for a compact adopted in 1785 which Maryland abrogated by unilateral action. This action led to litigation between the two states. An out-of-court settlement was reached with retired justice Stanley F. Reed of the Supreme Court serving as master.

The commission would regulate the taking of seafood and fish from the Potomac River between the District of Columbia and the Chesapeake Bay. The river is owned by Maryland to Virginia's shoreline.

Commission action would require the concurrence of at least two of the members from each state.

In addition to regulating fishery activities, the commission would have authority for research work, to impose an oyster inspection fee and to issue licenses.

Licenses for the taking of oysters and clams and for the commercial taking of finfish and crabs would be restricted to citizens of Maryland and Virginia.

Each state has agreed to appropriate at least $30,000 a year for use by the commission for purposes other than law enforcement.

Both states have enacted the necessary legislation for the commission and compact.

Sands Quits State Racial Commission

BALTIMORE (AP)—Douglas B. Sands, executive secretary of the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, resigned Monday. The move reportedly followed a proposal to reorganize the commission.

Sands, leader in the effort to desegregate restaurants flanking U. S. 40 in northeast Maryland, had served the commission for three years.

He reportedly quit because members of the commission proposed that Gov. Tawes appoint S. Edward Smith to a new post on the commission, that of executive director.

As such, Smith would outrank the executive secretary, Smith, a commission member, worked for the Tawes forces in the primary election campaign last May.

Parents Of Thalidomide Babies Form Association

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—A land, Sweden, Britain, Holland, German attorney, father of a Belgian, Switzerland, Italy, the crippled boy whose malformation is blamed on thalidomide, has initiated an association of German families having children deformed by the same drug.

The idea of the association, says lawyer Karl Schulte-Hillen, is to promote an exchange of opinions on medical, psychological and educational problems connected with the lives of such children.

"Some 400 families are now united in our group in Germany and I assume that we will soon have our contacts on an international basis," he said in an interview Monday. "The idea is that parents of children with similar deformations should have the closest contacts because they are faced with similar problems."

The lawyer contacted a German pediatrician, Dr. Widukind Lenz, in the spring last year after his wife and his sister gave birth to children lacking an arm. Both mothers had taken thalidomide during pregnancy.

The West German firm that developed thalidomide says there is no conclusive evidence the drug was responsible for the deformities.

Schulte-Hillen said according to one German expert's estimate the drug caused malformations in 5,000 German babies, including arm, leg, ear, eye and other defects.

He said that outside Germany cases had been established in Finland, Sweden, Britain, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, the United States, Canada, Egypt, West Africa and Japan.

Noah Webster began his preparation of his American dictionary of the English language in 1807 and published the book in 1828.

Katanga Calls Airport Closing Pressure Move

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—The Katanga government expressed belief Monday that U.N. closing of Elisabethville airport is the first step in international pressure to end this Congo province's secession.

Under an order issued Sunday by the United Nations, only U.N. planes can land at the airport.

Sabena, the Belgian airline with major operations in this mineral-rich province, said the order was more far-reaching. Sabena said it has been notified by U.N. authorities here its planes were barred from landing anywhere in Katanga.

A U.N. spokesman said the airport was closed at the request of the central government of the Congo in Leopoldville. He added that the Congo government demanded that all aircraft have Leopoldville's permission to land in Katanga. An exception is Albertville, now under control of central government troops.

Members of President Moise Tshombe's Katanga government warned that if the central government persists in this campaign it will mean an end to unity negotiations.

Tshombe and Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula recently broke off talks. But since then Adoula has come forward with plans for a new Congo constitution that would give provinces greater self-rule, thus meeting some of Tshombe's demands.

More Drastic (Continued from Page 1) would have wiped out 13,000 firemen's jobs in the next year but would have provided for gradual elimination of 28,000 other firemen by natural attrition.

The 1959 demands provided for modernization of on - train workers' pay structure without wage increases. Under the presidential commission's recommendations, about three-fourths of the 200,000 would get raises.

Man's Severed Hand Sewn Back

CHICAGO (UPI)—Surgeons Monday sewed on the hand of a man after it had been cleanly cut off by a paper cutter.

Attendants at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital said it was too early to tell whether the operation would be a success.

The hand of Arthur Holmes, 41, Chicago, had been severed by an automatic paper cutter while he was at work.

The hand was recovered by fellow workers and placed in an ambulance that took Holmes to the hospital.

The attendants said restoration of a hand was much more difficult than an arm because the veins, nerves and bones are much smaller.

Wall Street's Josephine Paul Dies At Age 62

NEW YORK (AP)—Josephine Bay Paul, 62, president of the Wall Street brokerage house of A.M. Kidder Co., Inc., died Monday in Columbia Presbyterian Center after a long illness.

She was the wife of Col. C. Michael Paul, an investment banker and independent oil operator. President Kennedy has been using their Palm Beach home as his winter White House.

Mrs. Paul's first husband was Charles Ulrick Bay, who served as U.S. ambassador to Norway from 1946 to 1953. Bay died in 1955.

Battle Of Antietam May Draw Crowd Of 100,000

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — They're coming from as far away as London for re-enactment of the bloodiest day in America's Civil War. Staging the Battle of Antietam next month, in the rolling Western Maryland farmland at nearby Sharpsburg, will climax an 18-day centennial celebration which begins Aug. 31.

It will be the second, and possibly the last, major re-enactment in the nation's five-year centennial. The National Park Service has said there will be no re-enactment after Antietam on land owned by the government.

The Battle of Antietam, actually three battles in one, raged all day Sept. 7, 1862, around a 30-acre cornfield, a sunken country lane, a whitewashed Dunker Church and a stone bridge across Antietam Creek.

Because it was so spread out, only that portion culminating in action at the sunken road — afterward known as Bloody Lane — will be re-enacted. The battle will be recreated twice, on Sept. 15 and 16, with Sept. 17 reserved for a memorial service on the battlefield.

More than 90 reactivated units of infantry, artillery and cavalry from 20 states and the District of Columbia are sending 2,200 men for the battle. They are coming from as far as Maine, Wisconsin and Alabama with authentic uniforms and weapons of the time.

President Kennedy has turned down his invitation to attend but former President Dwight D. Eisenhower probably will come down from his Gettysburg farm, and former President Harry S. Truman has been invited.

Authenticity is being stressed by the Antietam-South Mountain Centennial Association but some exceptions will be made. Each brigade will be directed by modern walkie-talkie. And cardboard ramps will be used for fear the troops will leave them in the cannon.

Sponsors hope for a crowd of 100,000. Civil War buffs alone will account for more than 500 as Civil War Round Tables from across the country meet here during the observance.

On the battlefield, there will be chairs for 5,000, bleachers for 6,000 and standing room for another 15,000 on a stepped hillside.

The celebration in Washington County will be a double-barreled one, also commemorating the 200th anniversary of Hagerstown's founding. The Hagerstown Herald-Mail will mark the occasion with a special edition Monday, Aug. 27.

Publisher Franklin D. Schurz Jr. said the edition, to be distributed with the Herald that morning and the Mail that afternoon, would have 168 pages — 128 of them devoted to the two anniversaries.

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — A burglar ransacked two Pikesville homes of more than $9,200 in cash, jewelry and furs during the weekend.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — John M. Ruth, 20-year-old mechanic, was charged with homicide by Baltimore County police Monday in the fatal stabbing of his father.

Police said they found George E. Ruth, 51, a welder, bleeding from a stab wound in the back Sunday night on the kitchen floor of his home east of Baltimore. His son was sitting in the living room.

Officers said the stabbing climaxed a four-hour argument. The son was held without bail pending a preliminary hearing.

Integrationists Swim, Eat Gun Puller Held In Ocean City, Md., "Test" In $3,000 Bond

BALTIMORE (AP) — An official of the Congress of Racial Equality disclosed Monday that members of the integrationist group went swimming and ate in restaurants in Ocean City during the past month.

Walter Carter, Baltimore chairman of CORE, said teams of two to eight persons visited the resort town quietly three times without encountering any difficulty.

Regarding the unobtrusive testing of Ocean City facilities, Carter said:

"We feel that this is something the people had wanted to do all the time. We're not taking credit for it. I think the people in Ocean City deserve the credit for it."

"The job is not complete there. But we feel very optimistic."

The CORE official said no publicity had been planned, in order to get a true test of sentiment in Ocean City, but the information had leaked out during the weekend.

"We felt this would catch a lot of people by surprise," he said. "People have assumed for years it was a completely lily-white resort. But this is a myth."

"Ocean City was open along the boardwalk. We went into the water. We used the beaches and ate at several of the restaurants. I'm sure the police took notice we were there."

"All of this was done without incident. In fact, we weren't turned down any place. We stopped testing after we ran out of money."

Carter said the first team went to Ocean City prior to July. A letter was sent to all businesses in the area July 3, asking them to position. Then a two-man team visited the town a week or two later, and this was followed by a visit by a team of eight Sunday.

Julius Hobson of Washington, D.C., eastern regional director of CORE, was quoted during the weekend as saying a meeting of CORE's National Action Council in New York was upset by segregation at Ocean City, and that demonstrations were planned for this month.

Carter said no demonstrations are planned at present.

Phipps To Announce Decision August 16

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Sen. Louis N. Phipps said Monday he will announce his decision Aug. 16 on whether he will resign from the legislature to become clerk of the circuit court for Anne Arundel County.

Making his first public statement since the county's Democratic state central committee nominated him to succeed the late George T. Cromwell, Phipps said he still has the matter under consideration.

The committee did not file for his nomination of Phipps for clerk until last Friday, nine days after it took the action. At the same time it filed nomination of Del. John F. McNulty to succeed Phipps as Democratic candidate for state senate.

Mrs. Johnson was the mother of two children. Another woman who lived with them had reported her missing. The woman said she last saw Mrs. Johnson the morning of July 1 with a man introduced to her as "Mr. Allen."

County police said an autopsy report indicated Mrs. Johnson had died of asphyxiation from chloroform, a bottle of which was found in the glove compartment of the car.

DJ Keeps Same Record Playing Until Pay Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disc jockey locked himself in radio station WPGC's control room Monday and played the same record over and over.

The record spinner, 26-year-old Larry Justice, announced on the air that the management had failed to give him a promised pay raise and that he was going to keep playing the record until he got it.

Listeners called in. Some even came to the station. Police dropped by to see if any laws were being broken, but found no desire for their help.

After two hours, the station management announced that Justice was being given a "substantial" pay increase.

So Justice quit playing the record, a simulated presidential news conference by imitator Lynn Weinrib.

Newspaper reporters suggested about an hour. Deputy Chief John to station program director Dean P. Kimmett said the fire started Griffith that maybe it was all a publicity stunt, but he insisted it wasn't.

Baltimore Fire Fatal To Boy, 11

BALTIMORE (AP) — An 11-year-old boy died in a rowhouse fire in Southwest Baltimore early Monday. Six other persons were injured, four of them members of the same family.

The victim, David Loudon, was the last of six children to be taken from the three-story brick home. He was dead on arrival at Bon Secours Hospital of smoke inhalation.

His two brothers, Daniel, 6, and Donald, 4, were in oxygen tents at the same hospital. Daniel was reported in critical condition and Donald in fair condition.

An emergency tracheotomy to aid breathing was to be performed on their father, William W. Loudon, 37. His condition was fair.

The boys' mother, Mrs. Emma Loudon, was being cared for by neighbors after treatment at a hospital for shock.

Firemen controlled the blaze in about an hour. Deputy Chief John to station program director Dean P. Kimmett said the fire started Griffith that maybe it was all a publicity stunt, but he insisted it wasn't.

Why it pays to talk to a Prudential Agent before you buy Health Insurance

There are many sorts of excellent Health Insurance available these days, with different plans, and different kinds of protection. Of course, no one type is right for everyone. Yet it's surprising how many people still just buy Health Insurance "off the rack," without knowing all of the benefits or limitations. They don't find out how much — or how little — protection they do have until the bills come in.

A good place to start when considering Health Insurance is with a Prudential Representative. He's an expert. He can recommend a Prudential Plan that can meet hospital and surgical costs for every one in your family who can qualify. And Prudential Hospital and Surgical Expense Plans are guaranteed continuable for life, with no change in premium except on a class basis; some Plans have modified benefits after age 65.

There's also a Prudential Plan that can guarantee valuable financial aid when sickness or injury keeps the breadwinner out of work. Another Prudential Plan can help you be prepared for the big expenses — such as the ones that hit three quarters of a million families with hospital and medical bills greater than half their total yearly income!

Battle Of Antietam May Draw Crowd Of 100,000

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — They're coming from as far away as London for re-enactment of the bloodiest day in America's Civil War. Staging the Battle of Antietam next month, in the rolling Western Maryland farmland at nearby Sharpsburg, will climax an 18-day centennial celebration which begins Aug. 31.

It will be the second, and possibly the last, major re-enactment in the nation's five-year centennial. The National Park Service has said there will be no re-enactment after Antietam on land owned by the government.

The Battle of Antietam, actually three battles in one, raged all day Sept. 7, 1862, around a 30-acre cornfield, a sunken country lane, a whitewashed Dunker Church and a stone bridge across Antietam Creek.

Because it was so spread out, only that portion culminating in action at the sunken road — afterward known as Bloody Lane — will be re-enacted. The battle will be recreated twice, on Sept. 15 and 16, with Sept. 17 reserved for a memorial service on the battlefield.

More than 90 reactivated units of infantry, artillery and cavalry from 20 states and the District of Columbia are sending 2,200 men for the battle. They are coming from as far as Maine, Wisconsin and Alabama with authentic uniforms and weapons of the time.

President Kennedy has turned down his invitation to attend but former President Dwight D. Eisenhower probably will come down two miles north of this Frederick from his Gettysburg farm, and for County town.

mer President Harry S. Truman has been invited.

Authenticity is being stressed by the Antietam-South Mountain Centennial Association but some exceptions will be made. Each brigade will be directed by modern walkie-talkie. And cardboard ramrods will be used for fear the troops will leave them in the cannon.

Sponsors hope for a crowd of 100,000. Civil War buffs alone will account for more than 500 as Civil War Round Tables from across the country meet here during the observance.

On the battlefield, there will be chairs for 5,000, bleachers for 6,000 and standing room for another 15,000 on a stepped hillside.

The celebration in Washington County will be a double-barreled one, also commemorating the 200th anniversary of Hagerstown's founding. The Hagerstown Herald-Mail will mark the occasion with a special edition Monday, Aug. 27.

Publisher Franklin D. Schurz Jr. said the edition, to be distributed with the Herald that morning and the Mail that afternoon, would have 168 pages — 128 of them devoted to the two anniversaries.

POINT OF ROCKS, Md. (AP) — Lewis L. Kline, 68, Adamstown, was killed Monday when a tractor trailer slammed into his car broadside.

MARTINSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — The Berkeley County Bar Association has a woman lawyer as its president for the first time in the history of the organization.

Miss Eleanor Pritts, a graduate of the West Virginia University law school, was elected at the bar association's annual outing at the Martinsburg Golf and Country Club to succeed Luke E. Terry of Martinsburg.

Miss Pritts has been practicing law in Martinsburg since 1956. She also is the only woman ever to be a member of the association.

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) — The Modern Language Department of St. Joseph College is conducting a workshop on modern approaches to teaching foreign languages.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The last piece of steel was ceremoniously put in place Monday on the first office building in Baltimore's multi-million-dollar redevelopment project, Charles Center.

As a traditional good luck gesture, an American flag rode to the top of the 30-story, $11 million building, One North Charles, with the 27-foot steel beam.

Steelwork was completed in five months on the building, scheduled for occupancy late this year.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A four-cent stamp commemorating the 25th anniversary of the National Apprenticeship Act will go on sale in Baltimore Sept. 1.

Under the act, the federal government has helped management and labor train millions of young workers in 375 skilled crafts.

The black on buff stamp, of horizontal design, depicts a gnarled hand of age handing a micrometer to a smooth hand of youth.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Tawes will make the keynote address at a seminar on campaign orientation for Democratic candidates in Maryland Aug. 18.

Richard K. Donahue, a special assistant to President Kennedy, and leaders in eight areas of Maryland government will lecture the Democratic candidates — five running for statewide office, seven seeking seats in Congress and 171 running for the legislature.

Herbert R. O'Connor Jr., state Democratic campaign chairman, said the candidates would be given first-hand information on progress made in Maryland government during the past four years.

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Januar D. Bove says he will ask the Delaware Supreme Court for postponement of a suit challenging representation in the General Assembly.

Bove said the delay should be granted until the legislature can give final approval to a reapportionment bill. The bill would base House representation on population and would give each of Delaware's three counties seven Senate seats.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Two men and a woman charged with committing an abortion on a 19-year-old unmarried girl have been freed on bail.

Baltimore County police identified the accused as Arthur J. Denison, 43, operator of a service station; his 41-year-old wife, Thelma, and Vincent J. Felicebus, 40, who operates a used car lot in suburban Glen Burnie.

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — A burglar ransacked two Pikesville homes of more than $9,200 in cash, jewelry and furs during the weekend.

Baltimore County police said Monday both robberies bore the marks of the same thief. At one of the homes, the burglar munched on roast beef from the icebox while going through the house thoroughly.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A teenager charged with burglarizing a construction company Saturday was found hanging in his cell at Northeast Police Station Sunday night.

Rudolph C. Williams, 16, a former patient at Crownsville State Hospital, was dead on arrival at Union Memorial Hospital.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — John M. Ruth, 20-year-old mechanic, was charged with homicide by Baltimore County police Monday in the fatal stabbing of his father.

Police said they found George E. Ruth, 51, a welder, bleeding from a stab wound in the back Sunday night on the kitchen floor of his home east of Baltimore. His son was sitting in the living room.

Officers said the stabbing climaxed a four-hour argument. The son was held without bail pending a preliminary hearing.

Integrationists Swim, Eat Gun Puller Held In Ocean City, Md., "Test" In $3,000 Bond

BALTIMORE (AP) — An official of the Congress of Racial Equality disclosed Monday that members of the integrationist group went swimming and ate in restaurants at Ocean City during the past month.

Walter Carter, Baltimore chairman of CORE, said teams of two to eight persons visited the resort town quietly three times without encountering any difficulty.

Regarding the unobtrusive testing of Ocean City facilities, Carter said:

"We feel that this is something the people had wanted to do all the time. We're not taking credit for it. I think the people in Ocean City deserve the credit for it."

"The job is not complete there. But we feel very optimistic."

The CORE official said no publicity had been planned, in order to get a true test of sentiment in Ocean City.

Carter said the first team went to Ocean City prior to July 4.

A letter was sent to all businesses in the area July 3, asking their position. Then a two-man team visited the town a week or two later, and this was followed by a visit by a team of eight Sunday.

Julius Hobson of Washington, D.C., eastern regional director of CORE, was quoted during the weekend as saying a meeting of CORE's National Action Council in New York was upset by segregation at Ocean City, and that demonstrations were planned for this month.

Carter said no demonstrations are planned at present.

The nude body of Mrs. Ethel E. Johnson, 31, was found in the trunk of a rented car abandoned in Philadelphia July 3. Police found it after Allen went to Baltimore police and told them he had killed a woman in a motel in adjacent Baltimore County.

The county grand jury returned the indictment. Allen has been held in the county jail without bail.

Mrs. Johnson was the mother of two children. Another woman who lived with them had reported her missing. The woman said she last saw Mrs. Johnson the morning of July 1 with a man introduced to her as "Mr. Allen."

County police said an autopsy report indicated Mrs. Johnson had died of asphyxiation from chloroform, a bottle of which was found in the glove compartment of the car.

The body of the woman was found hand and foot with rope and a stocking stuffed in her mouth.

Ocean City, but the information had leaked out during the weekend.

"We felt this would catch a lot of people by surprise," he said. "People have assumed for years it was a completely lily-white resort. But this is a myth."

"Ocean City was open along the boardwalk. We went into the water. We used the beaches and ate at several of the restaurants. I'm sure the police took notice we were there."

"All of this was done without incident. In fact, we weren't turned down any place. We stopped testing after we ran out of money."

The bidding:
North East South West
Pass Pass 4♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠
Today we lay to rest another of those hoary precepts of play which bridge inherited from its predecessor, whist — namely "Never Trump Your Partner's Ace." East committed this seeming indiscretion with telling effect against his opponent's game contract.

When the bidding had proceeded to South in third position, he decided to open with four spades. Inasmuch as his partner was a passed hand there appeared to be little prospect for a slam. On the other hand, game would depend merely on finding one or two slight values in the North hand, and if it should turn out that North had very little to contribute then surely the opposition could make a score their way. West showed admirable restraint in passing. Had he bid five clubs, his losses would have been recorded in four figures.

West opened the king of clubs against four spades, and observing the fall of his partner's eight he continued with the ace. East in the meantime had been doing some thinking. If he took a routine discard on West's high club, the latter would undoubtedly continue the suit in the hope that East could overruff the dummy. However, either the dummy's seven or nine of spades could top East's best trump and, after drawing the adverse spades, South would be able to discard whatever losers he had on North's diamonds.

East saw that the only chance to defeat the contract was to find his partner with the ace of hearts in which case a lead thru declarer's king might net two more tricks. However, if East were ever going to gain the lead, it was now or never, so he detached the deuce of trumps from his hand and placed it squarely on his partner's ace of clubs. His astuteness was duly rewarded when the queen of hearts returned did in fact produce the tricks required to set the bid.

Paul E. Rodecap New City Comptroller

Paul E. Rodecap, a native of Cumberland and formerly employed by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, will become Cumberland's comptroller under a one-year contract effective September 1.

Approval of the contract was given by the Mayor and Council at its meeting yesterday.

Under its terms of the contract, Rodecap will receive the minimum salary for the position — $8,216 annually—at the start, but effective January 14, 1963, will move to Step 1 in the classification system which provides for a salary of $8,450. This salary will remain in force until the end of the one-year trial period.

Under contract terms, the Mayor and Council has the right of termination upon 30 days notice. Rodecap will have all rights and privileges as an employee but he will not be under Classified Service during that time. Should he continue in the position after the trial period, the time served will be counted toward his seniority.

The city has been without a fulltime comptroller since April 30 when Albert J. Lawler resigned. City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery has served in an acting capacity and recently council hired Arthur B. Gibson, former comptroller, as financial consultant to see it through present budget discussions and to help train the new comptroller.

Rodecap is married and the father of two children. He attended Centre Street School and Fort Hill High School here and is a graduate of Bowling Green University where he received a B.S. degree in commerce. An Army veteran, he served from October, 1943 to March, 1946.

Rodecap, who will be 37 years old August 23, served in various accounting positions with the Goodyear Atomic Corp. from 1953 to the present time; The Goodyear Aircraft Corp., from 1952-1953; and Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company from 1951 to 1952.

He has resided in Waverly, Ohio. At one time he was instructor and principal of Jackson

Business University, Jackson, Mich.

In other personnel action yesterday, council accepted the resignations of Mrs. Janet C. Trost as stenographer in the City Clerk's office effective September 17; and Mrs. Mary Lou Arnone as clerk in the Water Department office effective September 4.

The promotion of Muri S. Boggs to corporal in the Police Department was approved effective yesterday.

Two seasonal employees were hired as replacements for the Recreation Department summer program. They are Rose Marie DelBusso as playground director and Gayle Proudfoot as extra-cashier checker at the park pool.

THROUGH STORM AND HIGH WATER...

The worst storm in 50 years was raging through Maryland. In Annapolis, the Arundel Volunteer Fire Department received a call for help. A family was marooned in their home—caught by the rising tides. Excitedly, they hung up before giving their location. When the firemen called back, all they received was a busy signal.

A fireman glanced out the window and spotted Daniel Burtis, telephone repairman. When asked to help, Dan quickly contacted the Annapolis telephone repair office. Together they determined the exact location of the home.

Immediately, Carroll Winter, another telephone repairman, was sent to investigate. When flooded roads stopped his truck, he proceeded on foot. Finally, he caught sight of the house—completely surrounded by high water.

Then Carroll found a deserted rowboat. Paddling it with a piece of lumber, he continued on. He reached the house just as the water level was rising over the door sill. Soon the six people inside—and their dog—were paddled to safety.

During this storm, many telephone men and women worked around the clock to keep telephones in service. Despite the emergency conditions, we're proud that many of these people were also able to give other assistance—wherever it was needed.

Paul E. Rodecap New City Comptroller

Paul E. Rodecap, a native of Cumberland and formerly employed by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, will become Cumberland's comptroller under a one-year contract effective September 1.

Approval of the contract was given by the Mayor and Council at its meeting yesterday.

Under its terms of the contract, Rodecap will receive the minimum salary for the position — $8,216 annually—at the start, but effective January 14, 1963, will move to Step 1 in the classification system which provides for a salary of $8,450. This salary will remain in force until the end of the one-year trial period.

Under contract terms, the Mayor and Council has the right of termination upon 30 days notice. Rodecap will have all rights and privileges as an employee but he will not be under Classified Service during that time. Should he continue in the position after the trial period, the time served will be counted toward his seniority.

The city has been without a fulltime comptroller since April 30 when Albert J. Lawler resigned. City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery has served in an acting capacity and recently council hired Arthur B. Gibson, former comptroller, as financial consultant to see it through present budget discussions and to help train the new comptroller.

Rodecap is married and the father of two children. He attended Centre Street School and Fort Hill High School here and is a graduate of Bowling Green University where he received a B.S. degree in commerce. An Army veteran, he served from October, 1943 to March, 1946.

Rodecap, who will be 37 years old August 23, served in various accounting positions with the Goodyear Atomic Corp. from 1953 to the present time; The Goodyear Aircraft Corp., from 1952-1953; and Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company from 1951 to 1952.

He has resided in Waverly, Ohio. At one time he was instructor and principal of Jackson

Business University, Jackson, Mich.

In other personnel action yesterday, council accepted the resignations of Mrs. Janet C. Trost as stenographer in the City Clerk's office effective September 17; and Mrs. Mary Lou Arnone as clerk in the Water Department office effective September 4.

The promotion of Muri S. Boggs to corporal in the Police Department was approved effective yesterday.

Two seasonal employees were hired as replacements for the Recreation Department summer program. They are Rose Marie DelBusso as playground director and Gayle Proudfoot as extra-cashier checker at the park pool.

Frightening Asthma Attacks End In Minutes As New Formula Unblocks Lung Passages Fast

New York, N.Y. (Special) — A team of scientists has announced a new formula that stops frightening asthma attacks in minutes and unblocks lung passages fast.

All without vaccines, painful shots or habit-forming drugs. This formula is so safe when used as directed, it can be sold without prescription in tiny tablets called BRONITIN®.

Doctors know that when asthma strikes, breathing tubes become swollen, lung passages become blocked, so air is "trapped" inside lungs and less and less oxygen can enter. Now BRONITIN, with two asthma relieving medicines that doctors prescribe for their patients, acts quickly to open bronchial tubes and loosen the mucus that blocks lung passages. Trapped air is released and new vital oxygen enters the lungs.

The result is: free breathing is restored, tension eased and so fears are calmed in minutes. Sufferers can now look forward to restful sleep.

Get BRONITIN—available at all drug stores without prescription.

Civic Project May Attract New Industry

BENWOOD, W. Va. (UPI) — Property owners in this Marshall County town have been asked by the mayor and council to clean up their community in an effort to get a prospective industrialist to build a new plant here.

Mayor Anthony J. Scaffidi told property owners in letters that an unidentified industrialist has given tentative approval to Benwood as the site for a plant which may employ 125 persons.

However, the mayor said the industrialist and some aides "expressed disappointment at the apparent lack of civic pride" and were not impressed by the appearance of certain areas following a recent tour.

Scaffidi asked the property owners to make a new effort to clean up and beautify their property to help bring the new industry to the community, located just south of Wheeling.

Output Of Garrett Gas Field Rises Slightly

OAKLAND — The quarterly report of the production from the local natural gas field showed a slight increase of $1,516.92 over the last period, it was revealed by the Garrett County Commissioners' office which received a check for $14,089.22. The check, three months ago was $12,572.30 and the one prior to that was $14,716.90.

The report was the second for the new year. The first $50,000 received in a year goes toward liquidation of the school building debt, and up to $25,000 above that goes toward the expenses of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The two checks this year total $26,661.52.

The report showed that 785,600,000 cubic feet of gas had been taken from the wells of the area compared to 695,686,000 the previous 90 days. The report covers the period April 1 to June 30 and showed an average of more than eight and one-half million per day. The amount received for marketable gas was $201,274.54 compared to $179,604.29 for previous quarter. Some checks for a three months' period have run as high as $28,000.

Thirty-two wells were listed as producing gas, one less than the previous report. The one missing this time was the Doerr Well.

Seventeen wells were listed under joint ownership of O. Eberly, Robert Eberly, William E. Snee and L. N. Murray for a portion of the period, but last month these wells were transferred to the Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation so the wells were listed twice in the report, the latter list covering only from June 13 to June 30.

The seventeen wells were again listed as the heaviest producers.

Largest on the list was the Barbara Miller well with a combined listing of more than 119 million cubic feet. Next was Herman and Hanlin well with over 118 million, then Black and Frazee with over 101 million; Bowser well with over 98 million and Collier well with over 49 million. The Norris K. Welch well, the area's first producer, was still going strong, supplying over 14 million cubic feet during the quarter.

The breakdown showed that $5,635.69 of the check was from the

Civic Project May Attract New Industry

BENWOOD, W. Va. (UPI) — Property owners in this Marshall County town have been asked by the mayor and council to clean up their community in an effort to get a prospective industrialist to build a new plant here.

Mayor Anthony J. Scaffidi told property owners in letters that an unidentified industrialist has given tentative approval to Benwood as the site for a plant which may employ 125 persons.

However, the mayor said the industrialist and some aides "expressed disappointment at the apparent lack of civic pride" and were not impressed by the appearance of certain areas following a recent tour.

Scaffidi asked the property owners to make a new effort to clean up and beautify their property to help bring the new industry to the community, located just south of Wheeling.

Oldest Residence In Romney

This is the "Mytinger Place," the oldest residence in Romney, which is observing its 200th anniversary Wednesday through Saturday. The only original historic building on U. S. Route 50 in West Virginia pre-dating George Washington, its construction date is lost in the past, but Washington's diary confirms that he spent the night of October 9, 1770, on the property. Lord Fairfax granted the land originally to one George Wilson, a forebear of President Woodrow Wilson. The residence, in bad repair, is being restored and eventually will be used as a museum.

Medical Group Plans Meeting

Smith is scheduled to discuss the Medical Assistance for the Aged (MAA) program and other welfare programs involving physicians when he meets with the council on the eve of the association convention at the Greenbrier.

Meeting with the commissioner for 90 minutes were association president Dr. D. E. Greenelich of Wheeling and secretary William Lively, Charleston.

Smith and the association have been at odds frequently in recent months over his handling of the MAA program which is favored by the association while Smith favors a Social Security approach to medical care for the aged.

Output Of Garrett Gas Field Rises Slightly

OAKLAND — The quarterly report of the production from the local natural gas field showed a slight increase of $1,516.92 over the last period, it was revealed by the Garrett County Commissioners' office which received a check for $14,089.22. The check three months ago was $12,572.30 and the one prior to that was $14,716.90.

The report was the second for the new year. The first $50,000 received in a year goes toward liquidation of the school building debt, and up to $25,000 above that goes toward the expenses of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The two checks this year total $26,661.52.

The report showed that 785,600,000 cubic feet of gas had been taken from the wells of the area compared to 695,686,000 the previous 90 days. The report covers the period April 1 to June 30 and showed an average of more than eight and one-half million per day. The amount received for marketable gas was $201,274.54 compared to $179,604.29 for previous quarter. Some checks for a three months' period have run as high as $28,000.

Thirty-two wells were listed as producing gas, one less than the previous report. The one missing this time was the Doerr Well. Seventeen wells were listed under joint ownership of O. Eberly, Robert Eberly, William E. Snee and L. N. Murray for a portion of the period, but last month these wells were transferred to the Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation so the wells were listed twice in the report, the latter list covering only from June 13 to June 30.

The seventeen wells were again listed as the heaviest producers. Largest on the list was the Barbara Miller well with a combined listing of more than 119 million cubic feet. Next was Herman and Hanlin well with over 118 million, then Black and Frazee with over 101 million, Bowser well with over 98 million and Collier well with over 49 million. The Norris K. Welch well, the area's first producer, was still going strong, supplying over 14 million cubic feet during the quarter.

The breakdown showed that $5,635.69 of the check was from the seum. In recent years, an interesting memento of Civil War days was found in the Mytinger House — a pocket-size New Testament, written in German, apparently left there in 1862 by one Friedrich Ellbueck who, notes in the booklet indicate, served in the Union Army under a Capt. Schwartz, both of whose names are written on the fly-leaf. The book was presented "To the Defenders of Our Country" by the New York Bible Society in April, 1861. Romney changed hands at least 36 times during the Civil War.

Coal Pipeline Improvements Are Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Former West Virginia Gov. Cecil H. Underwood predicted Monday that improvements in the coal pipeline process would make coal-slurry available to such large-volume users as the steel and cement industries.

Underwood, vice president of Island Creek Coal Co., Huntington, W. Va., made the prediction in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Bar Association's section of mineral and natural resources law.

Underwood said the right of eminent domain for coal pipeline builders "must be granted quickly" to enable coal to obtain markets that will otherwise go to competitive sources of energy.

The ex-governor said that coal reserves are spread over 34 states and noted that pipelines offer a "new potential" in transporting western coal into the rapidly expanding Pacific Coast utilities.

"Every year the mushrooming electric utility industry designs new plants and begins new construction contracts. If coal is to be considered as a primary fuel in these new plants of the future, utility management must include it in initial plans," Underwood said.

He said pipelines "will not likely disturb seriously existing patterns of production and transportation."

Because transportation cost have risen, he said, the industry has become interested in coal-by-wire, integrated trains, improved water transportation, coal by pipeline and "any other transportation technique that will reduce the freight bill." Underwood said transportation costs have gone up 10.7 per cent in the past decade.

Coal Pipeline Improvements Are Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Former West Virginia Gov. Cecil H. Underwood predicted Monday that improvements in the coal pipeline process would make coal-slurry available to such large-volume users as the steel and cement industries.

Underwood, vice president of Island Creek Coal Co., Huntington, W. Va., made the prediction in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Bar Association's section of mineral and natural resources law.

Underwood said the right of eminent domain for coal pipeline builders "must be granted quickly" to enable coal to obtain markets that will otherwise go to competitive sources of energy.

The ex-governor said that coal reserves are spread over 34 states and noted that pipelines offer a "new potential" in transporting western coal into the rapidly expanding Pacific Coast utilities.

"Every year the mushrooming electric utility industry designs new plants and begins new construction contracts. If coal is to be considered as a primary fuel in these new plants of the future, utility management must include it in initial plans," Underwood said.

He said pipelines "will not likely disturb seriously existing patterns of production and transportation."

Because transportation cost have risen, he said, the industry has become interested in coal-by-wire, integrated trains, improved water transportation, coal by pipeline and "any other transportation technique that will reduce the freight bill." Underwood said transportation costs have gone up 10.7 per cent in the past decade.

W. Va. Civic Leader Killed In Collision

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI)—R. Ward Christopher, prominent businessman and civic leader at Morgantown, W. Va., and general chairman of a million dollar fund drive for the West Virginia Centennial celebration, was fatally injured Monday in a two-car collision about four miles south of here.

State Police said Christopher, 37, died of an apparent skull fracture 15 minutes after he was admitted to a Washington hospital.

Police said the mishap occurred when a car driven by Robert Rush, 58, Washington, apparently attempted to make a left turn off U. S. Route 19 and collided with Christopher's car. Officers said Christopher's vehicle then veered off the highway and struck a tree. Rush was not injured.

Christopher was active in civic affairs at Morgantown and was owner of Christopher Fuel Co. and Christopher Mining Co. He also operated the luxurious Lakeview Country Club near Morgantown.

He was chosen by West Virginia Gov. W. W. Barron last June to head a campaign to raise upwards of $1 million to help finance the West Virginia observance of 100 years of statehood next year.

In Charleston, West Virginia Centennial Commission director Carl Sullivan said Christopher's death "is a great shock to all of us."

"He felt deeply about the Centennial and gave tirelessly of his time and energy as general chairman of the fund campaign. West Virginia has lost a rising young business executive and a dedicated citizen. He will be greatly missed."

Barron said the state "has suffered a great blow to its progressive leadership and I have lost a good friend...who put public duty and service above personal matters."

"Never once did his native state call upon him, but that he answered willingly and eagerly to the expense of his own personal business interests. His recent acceptance of the mammoth task of heading up the fund raising campaign for the Centennial exemplified his unselfish devotion to duty and state pride," Barron said.

The son of coal operator Frank E. Christopher, who now lives at Millwood, Va., Christopher is survived by his parents, his widow and two sons and a daughter, and two sisters, Mrs. William H. West Jr. of Millwood and Mrs. Joseph Farland, wife of the U. S. ambassador to Panama.

Local Brothers Escape Injury

Two young Cumberland brothers miraculously escaped injury Sunday when their automobile was demolished in a one-car accident about four miles south of Fort Ashby.

Trooper Robert Noechel, of the Keyser Detachment of the West Virginia State Police, said that a car driven by William Lloyd Lease, 21, of RD 5, city, was traveling along W. Va. Route 46 about 7:30 p. m. Sunday when the accident occurred.

Trooper Noechel said Lease told him that one of his tires blew out, causing him to lose control of the vehicle. The car traveled 200 yards into a field on the Raymond Anderson farm and flipped over on its top.

Lease's younger brother, John J. Lease, was a passenger. Both were uninjured.

The trooper said Lease signed bond Sunday before Justice of the Peace S. C. Pyles, Fort Ashby, on a charge of reckless driving.

Two Women Hurt In Crash

Two persons were hospitalized yesterday following a near-head-on collision of two cars on the Hoy Road in Hampshire County, W. Va.

Admitted to Hampshire Memorial Hospital, Romney, were Mrs. Frances Wolford, Romney, and Mrs. Neva Kesner, of Hoy, each of whom were passengers in the cars involved in the accident.

According to Trooper James Plybon and Sheriff J. M. Buckbee, who investigated, a car operated by Ralph Landis, 17, of Hoy, crossed over into the wrong lane after negotiating a sharp curve on Hoy Road.

The Landis vehicle crashed almost head-on with an approaching auto driven by Clarence R. Wolford, of Romney. Mrs. Wolford was admitted to the Romney hospital for X-rays and observation, and Mrs. Kesner, a passenger in the Landis car, was admitted for treatment of cuts on both legs.

Trooper Plybon said Landis has been charged with failure to keep to the right side of the highway.

Trial Postponed

BALTIMORE (AP) — The second trial of Robert F. Suchman of Baltimore on a charge of mail fraud in connection with a savings and loan association was postponed indefinitely Monday.

Earthquakes are more common in Italy and Japan than anywhere else in the world.

Three Appeal Cases Heard In Court Here

Three criminal appeals were heard in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday before Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris, who imposed 12-month sentences to the House of Correction in each case and then suspended the terms under specified conditions.

Cecil G. Grove, Potomac Park, appealed a six-month sentence to the House of Correction handed him by Juvenile Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin for non-support of his wife and three minor children.

Judge Harris suspended the year sentence on condition that Grove contribute $50 weekly to the care of his family. Grove was represented by Attorney Edwin M. Horchler.

Also appealing a six-month sentence by Magistrate Fatkin for non-support was John R. Boone, this city. Noting that Boone presently is unemployed, Judge Harris said he would be given a reasonable length of time in which to seek work, and ordered that Boone contribute $15 toward the support of his wife and minor daughter after obtaining employment.

James Melvin Roy, Barton, appealed concurrent six-month sentences given by Magistrate V. Browne Kookon on charges of operating a vehicle without tags and for reckless driving.

Judge Harris stipulated that the sentences should run consecutively, and ordered Roy to abide by orders that would be issued following a conference with James F. Lewis, county parole officer.

Neither Boone nor Roy were represented by counsel.

"Never once did his native state call upon him, but that he answered willingly and eagerly to the expense of his own personal business interests. His recent acceptance of the mammoth task of heading up the fund raising campaign for the Centennial exemplified his unselfish devotion to duty and state pride," Barron said.

Local Brothers Escape Injury

Two young Cumberland brothers miraculously escaped injury Sunday when their automobile was demolished in a one-car accident about four miles south of Fort Ashby.

Trooper Robert Noechel, of the Keyser Detachment of the West Virginia State Police, said that a car driven by William Lloyd Lease, 21, of RD 5, city, was traveling along W. Va. Route 46 about 7:30 p. m. Sunday when the accident occurred.

Trooper Noechel said Lease told him that one of his tires blew out, causing him to lose control of the vehicle. The car traveled 200 yards into a field on the Raymond Anderson farm and flipped over on its top.

Lease's younger brother, John J. Lease, was a passenger. Both were uninjured.

The trooper said Lease signed bond Sunday before Justice of the Peace S. C. Pyles, Fort Ashby, on a charge of reckless driving.

Two Women Hurt In Crash

Two persons were hospitalized yesterday following a near-head-on collision of two cars on the Hoy Road in Hampshire County, W. Va.

Admitted to Hampshire Memorial Hospital, Romney, were Mrs. Frances Wolford, Romney, and Mrs. Neva Kesner, of Hoy, each of whom were passengers in the cars involved in the accident.

According to Trooper James Plybon and Sheriff J. M. Buckbee, who investigated, a car operated by Ralph Landis, 17, of Hoy, crossed over into the wrong lane after negotiating a sharp curve on Hoy Road.

The Landis vehicle crashed almost head-on with an approaching auto driven by Clarence R. Wolford, of Romney. Mrs. Wolford was admitted to the Romney hospital for X-rays and observation, and Mrs. Kesner, a passenger in the Landis car, was admitted for treatment of cuts on both legs.

Trooper Plybon said Landis has been charged with failure to keep to the right side of the highway.

Three Appeal Cases Heard In Court Here

Three criminal appeals were heard in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday before Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris, who imposed 12-month sentences to the House of Correction in each case and then suspended the terms under specified conditions.

Cecil G. Grove, Potomac Park, appealed a six-month sentence to the House of Correction handed him by Juvenile Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin for non-support of his wife and three minor children.

Judge Harris suspended the year sentence on condition that Grove contribute $50 weekly toward the care of his family. Grove was represented by Attorney Edwin M. Horschler.

Also appealing a six-month sentence by Magistrate Fatkin for non-support was John R. Boone, this city. Noting that Boone presently is unemployed, Judge Harris said he would be given a reasonable length of time in which to seek work, and ordered that Boone contribute $15 toward the support of his wife and minor daughter after obtaining employment.

James Melvin Roy, Barton, appealed concurrent six-month sentences given by Magistrate V. Browne Kookon on charges of operating a vehicle without tags and for reckless driving.

Judge Harris stipulated that the sentences should run consecutively, and ordered Roy to abide by orders that would be issued following a conference with James F. Lewis, county parole officer.

Neither Boone nor Roy were represented by counsel.

Berlin Background And The Future

For days, Washington has been expecting a new full-blown Berlin crisis. The prevalent viewpoint is that Khrushchev was not engaging in idle threats when he brought up the subject of a separate peace treaty between Moscow and East Germany.

When it is signed, he said, the West will have no more rights in Berlin. East Germany will have full control of access to West Berlin, and this will all be done peacefully. Unless, of course, "American militarists" and the war-mongering American press induce the West to resist dispossession.

Khrushchev has generously offered to allow the West to leave Berlin of its own free will. The threat is that if it continues to refuse it will be forced out — "peacefully" unless it is so criminal as to resist force.

In all this there is no mention of East Berlin. No proposals to let Western or neutral troops into that part of the city. The Communists control it and they have their wall. The capture of East Berlin is an accomplished fact. Most readers have almost forgotten how it was accomplished.

Under the Potsdam and other agreements, all of Berlin—not just West Berlin—was to be under a four-power Allied Control Commission, exercising supervision over the city government which was to be elected. But in 1946 the Social Democrats won an all-Berlin election from the Soviet-backed Socialist Unity Party. Russia promptly vetoed the choice of Ernst Reuter as mayor.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Too Much Waste

It takes too much time, too much effort and too much money to become President of the United States. It is an undertaking to be made only by millionaires or the favorites of labor unions which have large treasuries. The corporations who could, in Mark Hanna's day, influence a nomination are today paralyzed by law; generous private givers are becoming stung because of the income tax.

A Presidential candidate has to run many times: first, in the primaries; second, at the convention; third, at an election; fourth, indirectly during the intermediate Congressional and gubernatorial election when his future may be determined; fifth, during the re-election primary; sixth, during the re-election convention; seventh, during the re-election campaign. If he makes two terms, a veritable fortune has been spent.

I should like to tote up the costs of this very complicated operation but such figures are not accurately or completely available. Maybe, when President Kennedy has had his two terms and has retired, he will write a book on the subject.

In 1957, Professor William G. Carleton of the University of Florida, commenting on this subject in the "Political Science Quarterly," wrote:

"The days of the favorite son, the dark horse, the stalking horse, the smoke-filled conference room, the Senatorial and Congressional cabal, and the decisive trading of votes by local bigwigs are numbered, if indeed they are not already finished. 'Insiders' and members of the political 'club' are being cut down to size and forced to accept the leadership of those who have made successful national pre-convention campaigns and of those who have become national 'names' and mass celebrities."

That was not so at either convention in 1960. Among the Democrats, the contest was between John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. Both had campaigned in the primaries, but the convention was as it had been since conventions started: there were deals and bargains and arrangements. Even television changed nothing because there were no television sets in the private hotel rooms and the lobbies. The Kennedy steamroller, managed by Robert Kennedy and Abraham Ribicoff, was a well-oiled, brilliantly managed operation.

The Republican Convention was even simpler. President Eisenhower chose Richard Nixon and the delegates were there to applaud. Nelson Rockefeller, who wanted the job, was left out in the cold.

Kennedy's campaign recognized a fundamental principle: the Solid South could be depended upon for perhaps one more Democratic vote; the task was to subtract votes from the Republican North.

This was accomplished by recognizing that the North had become urbanized and that women voted. Kennedy made his pitch that way. Nixon would have been elected had he not listened to advisers who told him to be gentle and polite and had he not tried to save Eisenhower's face.

I note that Professor Carleton said: "Mass pressures were responsible for the nomination of Wendell Willkie. The average Republican delegate did not want Willkie. The average Republican politician, guided by the old rules of the game, had every reason to be suspicious of him. The old rules demanded a professional, a proved vote-getter."

Wendell Willkie was chosen by groups attached to the National Association of Manufacturers. I was part of that apparatus for a short time and saw it in its infancy. The campaign for Willkie was set up long before the convention. Willkie had been a Democrat; a member of Tammany Hall and of the New York Democratic County Committee. Earlier, he had been a Socialist. However, he delivered a speech at the Town Hall in New York in favor of private enterprise.

A public relations job was organized to mobilize industry. Pressures were put on men and businesses, on delegates and politicians, in effect, that it would have to be Willkie or your mortgage would be called. The masses, as the professor put it, when they had a chance to vote, preferred Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term.

Even so, the Willkie campaign, if it were ever studied in depth, was a very expensive enterprise. It was the first time that Madison Avenue played a major role in a political campaign—an enterprise which Roosevelt characterized as "Martin, Barton and Fish."

However, Madison Avenue has remained in the campaigns and has raised the costs as though votes were detergents. Perhaps the most costly operation are the polls. All sorts of pollsters have come into existence since Dr. Gallup started the business and candidates buy their conclusions as folks used to buy patent medicines.

Small Craft Warning

Mid-Term Kennedy Similar To Roosevelt Of 1934

By Robert J. Donovan

(Joseph Alsop is on vacation. During this period his column will be written by reporters expert in national and international affairs.)

WASHINGTON — Everyone remembers how mightily Franklin D. Roosevelt swept over Alf Landon to win a second term. What we forget and what is interesting to recall at this time of political trouble for John F. Kennedy is how things stood for Roosevelt when he was at that point in his first term that Kennedy is approaching in his.

One-fifth of the labor force was still unemployed. The national income was nearly $40 billion below 1929. Some 389 cases involving challenges to New Deal laws were pending in the courts. The NRA and the AAA, twin pillars of Roosevelt's recovery program, were not only in turmoil but were in the shadow of death. Many voters were annoyed by Roosevelt's family. Worst of all, Roosevelt was already in trouble with Congress (how familiar!), which Democrats controlled by a greater majority than they enjoy under President Kennedy.

The Republicans, then as now, had begun to recover from their defeat in a Presidential election and were uniting against Roosevelt's legislation. Southern Democrats were marching off the reservation, which has a familiar ring too.

It is a fascinating exercise to read "The Politics of Upheaval," the excellent history of that period by Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., and make believe that the man he is writing about is not Franklin Roosevelt in 1934-35, but John F. Kennedy in August, 1962, for example:

"These were hard days for the President. He knew that things were going badly. On every side he was assailed with demands for action."

"The outlook . . . was increasingly troubling. The country already seemed in a condition of economic stalemate. A political stalemate was threatening in the new Congress."

"The latent discontent presented a challenge to the President. He too sensed the national mood; worse, he evidently shared the national bafflement."

"As Congress reconvened, it appeared that the President had no bold new proposals to send to the Hill."

"The new session had barely begun when Roosevelt found himself in trouble. . . . (Within two weeks the President suffered the humiliation of seeing his World Court bill defeated in the Senate.)"

"Ickes reported Roosevelt about this time as 'distinctly dispirited. I have never seen him in quite such a state of mind. He looked tired and he seemed to lack fighting vigor of the buoyancy that has always characterized him.' For the first time since he had come to Washington, Congress was defying him — and getting away with it."

"Ernest Gruening, Director of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions in the Department of Interior, expressed to Harold Ickes his concern over the decline in the popularity of the President. . . . Gruening learned from Col. House that Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, Homer Cummings, the Attorney General, and Daniel Roper, the Secretary of Commerce . . . had already waited on him (Col. House) with similar worries."

"The expert consensus was that the Administration 'was drifting and losing popular strength.'"

"Oscar Chapman, the political astute Assistant Secretary of Interior, declared that the tide was running strongly against the Administration and that 'unless the President did something to change the current during the next 30 days,' he could not be re-

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CONFRONTATION—Stewart L. Udall is the secretary of Interior. Morris K. Udall is a representative from Arizona. They are brothers, Morris having succeeded Stewart in the House.

Ever since the second Udall appeared on the Washington scene, his colleagues in the House have been speculating on what would happen when the secretary of the Interior faced his brother on the House Interior committee. It finally happened.

Stewart appeared before the committee to testify in favor of legislation to expand outdoor recreation facilities. One by one, the committee members questioned him closely on the legislation, finally working down to the most junior member of the committee, Morris.

But Morris was prepared, and aware of all the eyes being on him as it came his turn to question his Cabinet member brother.

"As the former law partner of the secretary," Rep. Udall began, "I have looked forward to questioning him. But being a new member, and far down on the list, all the questions I planned have already been asked."

When the conservative coalition was harassing Roosevelt after only two years in office, he appeared even to the experts to be weaker than he was when he had been elected. In reality, as we were to learn, he was much stronger. In a lesser degree the same may be true of Kennedy today, though he has some very treacherous ground to tread. Between mid-term and the 1936 election Roosevelt had to act boldly to get out of the doldrums he was in. The same challenge now confronts the President, and he will have to meet it in his own way.

elected in 1936."

"Vice-President Garner said in Cabinet that he had not seen so much trouble since he had been in Congress: no sooner did he put out one fire than another broke out somewhere else."

"The despondency was spreading fast from Washington to the country. Thomas Amle, the Progressive from Wisconsin, reported a 'very distinct change' in his letters from home: 'The people who write to me express the most profound discouragement about the national Administration.'"

Sen. Key Pittman thought that "the fault is a lack of confidence in the success of the Administration."

Obviously, in the light of the Landon debacle, the situation was deceptive then. What we do not know for sure is whether the situation now is equally deceptive. Quite probably this is the case. It was one thing when FDR was struggling in Washington with a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats. It was altogether another when, backed by the very different kind of coalition that the Democratic party can assemble in a Presidential election, he went into the ring against a particular Republican candidate.

When the conservative coalition was harassing Roosevelt after only two years in office, he appeared even to the experts to be weaker than he was when he had been elected. In reality, as we were to learn, he was much stronger. In a lesser degree the same may be true of Kennedy today, though he has some very treacherous ground to tread. Between mid-term and the 1936 election Roosevelt had to act boldly to get out of the doldrums he was in. The same challenge now confronts the President, and he will have to meet it in his own way.

Use Of Psoralens Help Some Cases Of Vitiligo

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Vitiligo is a condition in which there is a spotty loss of skin pigment. Only one or two white patches may be present or the depigmentation may be so extensive as to involve half the body surface. The disorder is more noticeable in summer because the surrounding normal skin is tanned and these white spots present a cosmetic defect in dark skinned

When there are only one or two, they may be stained approximately the color of the normal skin. Various cosmetics are available for this purpose. These men and women usually stay out of the sun to avoid tanning. Nothing need be done when the white patches are on areas that do not show.

A chemical remedy (psoralen) was introduced 10 years ago with variable results. It is of no value for some victims of vitiligo. Others develop new pigment but lose it after the product is stopped. A few who develop new pigment retain it through the winter so that each year more melanin can be added. In all, approximately 50 per cent obtain an appreciable amount of new pigment.

The psoralens must be used according to directions. They sensitize the skin to ultraviolet rays and usually are taken internally, followed in two hours by a short period of exposure to the sun. The sensitized skin responds quickly and will burn if exposed too long. The skin darkens within a short time.

This method of getting a quick tan is utilized also by persons who burn easily and is recommended when the risk of using a chemical of this type is justified. The white patches may burn slightly during the first treatment but this is less likely to occur as the patches darken.

BEANS ARE SAFE

J. L. writes: A while ago I read that if a person eats beans several times a day, blood poisoning will develop in time. I love beans, especially string beans, so am worried. I asked several of my teachers and they don't know but have become troubled about the possibility also. Do you think blood poisoning could develop from eating beans?

REPLY

PINWORMS AND APPENDICITIS

Mrs. D. H. writes: Is there any danger of appendicitis following pinworms? I developed appendicitis after I got pinworms and my two daughters who have had pinworms had to have the appendix removed.

REPLY
Pinworms are found occasionally in an infected appendix but are not considered causative unless they obstruct the openings.

STRETCHING

C. D. writes: Can a person overdo the morning stretch? How many stretches can be taken without harming the muscles?

REPLY
Overstretching a muscle may lead to cramp or spasm. There is no harm in a good stretch; you take as many stretches as your little heart desires.

CANDY AND CARIES

N. B. writes: Does too much candy cause baby teeth to rot?

REPLY
Yes, in that candy and other sweets have the same effect on baby teeth as on the permanent set. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on dental caries, which discusses this and other aspects of cavities.

COMMON MEASLES

A. B. S. writes: Do all children get measles?

REPLY
This disease is so highly contagious, few escape when exposed.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Secretary Of Defense, Air Force General Investigate Each Other

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Playing Pentagon Peekaboo, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and his scowling Air Force chief, Gen. Curtis Le May, recently completed an investigation of each other that ended in a stand-off.

Both men sent their gumshoes prowling through the Pentagon, like television heavies, seeking incriminating evidence on one another.

What started all the snooping was an article which Richard Fryklund, news sleuth for the Washington Star, had written but never published. He had shown it around the Pentagon, however, causing consternation in high places.

He had written that the military planners had set up an optional target system, a matter that wasn't supposed to be known outside the Pentagon's most secret rooms. Indeed, he had even mentioned the secret number of optional targets.

The horrified McNamara, anxious to plug a leak of classified information, ordered a watch on Fryklund's movements.

At a subsequent meeting with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, McNamara confided that the gumshoes trailing Fryklund had reported back something interesting.

They had followed him as he trudged around the Pentagon, distributing complimentary copies of a new book he had written. Most of the copies, the watchdogs had reported triumphantly, had gone to Air Force officers.

McNamara commented dryly that Fryklund's friends seemed to be in the Air Force, therefore the classified information must have come from the Air Force. "I am tired of these blanket accusations!" growled Le May. "I think it came from your office."

"All right," offered McNamara cheerfully, "you investigate my office."

Thus began the great game of Hide-and-Go-Snoop, pitting Defense Department investigators against Air Force investigators. To no one's particular surprise, they came up empty-handed.

Note—Investigating news sources has become such a popular Pentagon pastime that even the FBI has been called in on the sport.

McNamara has asked the G-men to check on the sources of no less than The New York Times' distinguished military writer, Hanson Baldwin.

From secret State Department files, the story can now be told how Philip Bonsal, as ambassador to Cuba in 1959, tried to block the Narcotics Bureau from getting two alleged racketeers kicked out of Cuba.

In an official communique to the Cuban government, the Narcotics Bureau identified Jake Linsky and Giordano Cellini as American mobsters and asked dictator Fidel Castro to deport them.

The pair had been helping Santo Trafficante Jr., one of the top ten in the American underworld, to operate Havana's glittering, pre-Castro gambling casinos.

Only a few months earlier, Jake, brother of gang boss, Meyer Linsky, had been searched as he passed through Miami. He was carrying a brief case stuffed with $200,000 in greenbacks and $50,000 in checks.

But Ambassador Bonsal opposed the Narcotics Bureau's deportation request. A confidential State Department document gives this account of a conference that took place in the Havana Embassy on May 12, 1959:

"The ambassador stated that as a nation advocating justice and equality for all, we certainly would not act in that regard by recommending the deportation of persons such as Linsky and Cellini on the basis of meager information with no evidence to substantiate it.

"He requested that Mr. Brown (an embassy aide) forward a message to the State Department indicating the embassy's position on this matter so that steps could be taken to prevent a recurrence of such injustice."

Questions And Answers

Q—I hear Jacqueline Kennedy's huntmaster found a high-paying tenant to rent out the Glen Ora estate for the summer. What's the inside story?—B. H., Warren-ton, Va.

A—The First Lady leased Glen Ora originally through Charles Turner Jr., a real estate agent, who is also master of the hunt. Turner belongs to one of Virginia's proud old families, but the family fortune is running low. So he is obliged to make a dignified living. He was too reserved, however, to approach Mrs. Kennedy about subletting Glen Ora, though he knew Mrs. Paul Entenman, a New York socialite, wanted to rent it for the summer. Result: Mrs. Entenman arranged the lease through another broker, and Jackie's huntmaster lost the commission. The first family is collecting a reported $2,000 a month rent.

Q—Why don't you investigate the use of a Navy plane to fly 25 political hacks from Venice to Pensacola at the taxpayers' expense?—J. L. C., Venice, Fla.

A—The Navy is providing a free plane to fly 25 "civic leaders" from Venice to Pensacola this week for a two-day orientation visit aboard the aircraft carrier Antietam.

Geography Lesson

Alaskan Sen. Bob Bartlett is curious about the geography taught in Florida. Although sunny Florida and chilly Alaska have little in common, he was startled to receive a letter from a Florida junior high school student addressed to the "Alaskan embassy, Washington, D. C."

The student explained that he was preparing for a course this fall on foreign countries.

"I would greatly appreciate," he wrote, "the following information: dating customs, arranged marriages, native foods, native dress, family relations (compared with the U. S.), teen-age activities, education, fads, and religious beliefs."

Thinking Machines

By Richard L. Worsnop

WASHINGTON — Jonathan Swift described in Gulliver's Travels a "Project for improving speculative Knowledge by practical and mechanical Operations." A professor in the Grand Academy of Lagado in the land of Laputa had constructed a machine which produced fragments of sentences at random. By piecing the fragments together, he hoped "to give the World a complete Body of All Arts and Sciences."

Swift's object was to ridicule the pretensions of science, but science has now turned the tables on Swift. Today's electronic computers are capable of composing verse, playing checkers, and solving in minutes or hours problems that would require a lifetime of work by several scientists. Tomorrow's machines, it is said, will be able to write "meaningful and relevant sentences in proper English" and to carry on conversations.

In their present state of development, computers are far from being "electronic brains." They cannot even add two and two unless told how to do so by a human operator. However, it is erroneous to suppose that there will always be a wide gap between human and artificial intelligence. Scientists now look toward development of computers that will store experience as well as facts. When confronted with a problem, such machines would choose their own way of solving it.

Computers already are on the way to revolutionizing the conduct of government and business. The Internal Revenue Service this year opened in Atlanta the first of nine regional computer centers to handle income tax returns. When fully developed in 1966, the I.R.S. computer network will process and, when necessary, audit every federal income tax return in the country. Revenue officials assert that computers, aided by a master tape file containing a three-year payment record of every taxpayer, will boost annual tax collections by $5 billion.

Military men are uneasy about the growing influence of computers on defense strategy. They complained last March that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's decision to hold back funds for the RS-70 reconnaissance strike bomber was based on computer calculations. Computers in the Pentagon conduct elaborate war games and choose the best weapons and designs from hundreds of alternatives. Indeed, they may have reduced the need for some kinds of nuclear testing; to a large extent, battlefield performance of weapons can be predicted by machines while the weapons are still on the drawing board.

Business concerns and financial institutions employ computers in a variety of ways. The machines are used by banks to process checks and accounts; by insurance companies for premium billing, accounting and actuarial forecasting; by airline offices for ticketing and to answer queries on availability of seating space. The Neiman-Marcus department store in Dallas last year put a computer to work as a "gift advisory system" during the Christmas shopping season. One of the machine's suggestions was that a young man with $10 to spend on a sophisticated girl friend buy a gold soap dish containing a bar of gold-colored soap.

Computers have affected employment in two ways. On the one hand, they have created a demand for programmers, systems engineers and other personnel. On the other hand, they have stunted white-collar employment growth in almost every office in which they have been introduced. Whether the machines will open up more jobs than they swallow up is a question that remains to be answered.

Computers are proving a god-send in chronically understaffed professions. Two years ago, the System Development Corp. exhibited a computer-teacher capable of flashing multiple-choice questions on 100 or more small desk screens. Students simultaneously using the device need not be in the same room or even the same building. When fed data about a patient's case history, environment, symptoms and laboratory test results, computers can come up with a remarkably accurate diagnosis of his ailment. Thus they promise to give physicians more time to spend on treatment and research.

Computers have invaded the citadels of management, once considered immune to the impact of automation. Experience, intuition and "business aptitude"—traits commonly attributed to a good manager—are of declining importance as computers take some of the risk out of decision-making. The machines can, for example, predict what share of the market a new product will capture under varying budgets, introduction times, advertising appeals, packaging and pricing.

Berlin Background And The Future

For days, Washington has been expecting a new full-blown Berlin crisis. The prevalent viewpoint is that Khrushchev was not engaging in idle threats when he brought up the subject of a separate peace treaty between Moscow and East Germany.

When it is signed, he said, the West will have no more rights in Berlin. East Germany will have full control of access to West Berlin, and this will all be done peacefully. Unless, of course, "American militarists" and the war-mongering American press induce the West to resist dispossession.

Khrushchev has generously offered to allow the West to leave Berlin of its own free will. The threat is that if it continues to refuse it will be forced out — "peacefully" unless it is so criminal as to resist force.

In all this there is no mention of East Berlin. No proposals to let Western or neutral troops into that part of the city. The Communists control it and they have their wall. The capture of East Berlin is an accomplished fact. Most readers have almost forgotten how it was accomplished.

Under the Potsdam and other agreements, all of Berlin—not just West Berlin—was to be under a four-power Allied Control Commission, exercising supervision over the city government which was to be elected. But in 1946 the Social Democrats won an all-Berlin election from the Soviet-backed Socialist Unity Party. Russia promptly vetoed the choice of Ernst Reuter as mayor.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Too Much Waste

It takes too much time, too much effort and too much money to become President of the United States. It is an undertaking to be made only by millionaires or the favorites of labor unions which have large treasuries. The corporations who could, in Mark Hanna's day, influence a nomination are today paralyzed by law; generous private givers are becoming stingy because of the income tax.

A Presidential candidate has to run many times: first, in the primaries; second, at the convention; third, at an election; fourth, indirectly during the intermediate Congressional and gubernatorial election when his future may be determined; fifth, during the re-election primary; sixth, during the re-election convention; seventh, during the re-election campaign. If he makes two terms, a veritable fortune has been spent.

I should like to tote up the costs of this very complicated operation but such figures are not accurately or completely available. Maybe, when President Kennedy has had his two terms and has retired, he will write a book on the subject.

In 1957, Professor William G. Carleton of the University of Florida, commenting on this subject in the "Political Science Quarterly," wrote:

"The days of the favorite son, the dark horse, the stalking horse, the smoke-filled conference room, the Senatorial and Congressional cabal, and the decisive trading of votes by local bigwigs are numbered, if indeed they are not already finished. 'Insiders' and members of the political 'club' are being cut down to size and forced to accept the leadership of those who have made successful national pre-convention campaigns and of those who have become national 'names' and mass celebrities."

That was not so at either convention in 1960. Among the Democrats, the contest was between John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. Both had campaigned in the primaries, but the convention was as it had been since conventions started: there were deals and bargains and arrangements. Even television changed nothing because there were no television sets in the private hotel rooms and the lobbies. The Kennedy steamroller, managed by Robert Kennedy and Abraham Ribicoff, was a well-oiled, brilliantly managed operation. The Republican Convention was even simpler. President Eisenhower chose Richard Nixon and the delegates were there to applaud. Nelson Rockefeller, who wanted the job, was left out in the cold.

Kennedy's campaign recognized a fundamental principle: the Solid South could be depended upon for perhaps one more Democratic vote; the task was to subtract votes from the Republican North.

This was accomplished by recognizing that the North had become urbanized and that women voted. Kennedy made his pitch that way. Nixon would have been elected had he not listened to advisers who told him to be gentle and polite and had he not tried to save Eisenhower's face.

I note that Professor Carleton said: "Mass pressures were responsible for the nomination of Wendell Willkie. The average Republican delegate did not want Willkie. The average Republican politician, guided by the old rules of the game, had every reason to be suspicious of him. The old rules demanded a professional, a proved vote-getter."

Wendell Willkie was chosen by groups attached to the National Association of Manufacturers. I was part of that apparatus for a short time and saw it in its infancy. The campaign for Willkie was set up long before the convention. Willkie had been a Democrat; a member of Tammany Hall and of the New York Democratic County Committee. Earlier, he had been a Socialist. However, he delivered a speech at the Town Hall in New York in favor of private enterprise.

A public relations job was organized to mobilize industry. Pressures were put on men and businesses, on delegates and politicians, in effect, that it would have to be Willkie or your mortgage would be called. The masses, as the professor put it, when they had a chance to vote, preferred Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term.

Even so, the Willkie campaign, if it were ever studied in depth, was a very expensive enterprise. It was the first time that Madison Avenue played a major role in a political campaign—an enterprise which Roosevelt characterized as "Martin, Barton and Fish."

However, Madison Avenue has remained in the campaigns and has raised the costs as though votes were detergents. Perhaps the most costly operation are the polls. All sorts of pollsters have come into existence since Dr. Gallup started the business and candidates buy their conclusions as folks used to buy patent medicines.

Small Craft Warning

Mid-Term Kennedy Similar To Roosevelt Of 1934

By Robert J. Donovan

(Joseph Alsop is on vacation. During this period his column will be written by reporters expert in national and international affairs.)

WASHINGTON — Everyone remembers how mightily Franklin D. Roosevelt swept over Alf Landon to win a second term. What we forget and what is interesting to recall at this time of political trouble for John F. Kennedy is how things stood for Roosevelt when he was at that point in his first term that Kennedy is approaching in his.

One-fifth of the labor force was still unemployed. The national income was nearly $40 billion below 1929. Some 389 cases involving challenges to New Deal laws were pending in the courts. The NRA and the AAA, twin pillars of Roosevelt's recovery program, were not only in turmoil but were in the shadow of death. Many voters were annoyed by Roosevelt's family. Worst of all, Roosevelt was already in trouble with Congress (how familiar!), which Democrats controlled by a greater majority than they enjoy under President Kennedy.

The Republicans, then as now, had begun to recover from their defeat in a Presidential election and were uniting against Roosevelt's legislation. Southern Democrats were marching off the reservation, which has a familiar ring too.

It is a fascinating exercise to read "The Politics of Upheaval," the excellent history of that period by Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., and make believe that the man he is writing about is not Franklin Roosevelt in 1934-'35, but John F. Kennedy in August, 1962, for example.

"These were hard days for the President. He knew that things were going badly. On every side he was assailed with demands for action."

"The outlook . . . was increasingly troubling. The country already seemed in a condition of economic stalemate. A political stalemate was threatening in the new Congress."

"The latent discontent presented a challenge to the President. He too sensed the national mood; worse, he evidently shared the national bafflement."

"As Congress reconvened, it appeared that the President had no bold new proposals to send to the Hill."

"The new session had barely begun when Roosevelt found himself in trouble." Within two weeks the President suffered the humiliation of seeing his World Court bill defeated in the Senate.

"Ickes reported Roosevelt about this time as 'distinctly dispirited. I have never seen him in quite such a state of mind. He looked tired and he seemed to lack fighting vigor of the buoyancy that has always characterized him.' For the first time since he had come to Washington, Congress was defying him — and getting away with it."

"Ernest Gruening, Director of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions in the Department of Interior, expressed to Harold Ickes his concern over the decline in the popularity of the President . . . Gruening learned from Col. House that Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, Homer Cummings, the Attorney General, and Daniel Roper, the Secretary of Commerce . . . had already waited on him (Col. House) with similar worries."

"The expert consensus was that the Administration 'was drifting and losing popular strength.'"

"Oscar Chapman, the political astute Assistant Secretary of Interior, declared that the tide was running strongly against the Administration and that 'unless the President did something to change the current during the next 30 days,' he could not be re-

CONFRONTATION—Stewart L. Udall is the secretary of Interior. Morris K. Udall is a representative from Arizona. They are brothers, Morris having succeeded Stewart in the House.

Ever since the second Udall appeared on the Washington scene, his colleagues in the House have been speculating on what would happen when the secretary of the Interior faced his brother on the House Interior committee. It finally happened.

Stewart appeared before the committee to testify in favor of legislation to expand outdoor recreation facilities. One by one, the committee members questioned him closely on the legislation, finally working down to the most junior member of the committee, Morris.

But Morris was prepared, and aware of all the eyes being on him as it came his turn to question his Cabinet member brother. "As the former law partner of the secretary," Rep. Udall began, "I have looked forward to questioning him. But being a new member, and far down on the list, all the questions I planned have already been asked."

Use Of Psoralens Help Some Cases Of Vitiligo

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Vitiligo is a condition in which there is a spotty loss of skin pigment. Only one or two white patches may be present or the depigmentation may be so extensive as to involve half the body surface. The disorder is more noticeable in summer because the surrounding normal skin is tanned and these white spots present a cosmetic defect in dark skinned racers.

When there are only one or two, they may be stained approximately the color of the normal skin. Various cosmetics are available for this purpose. These men and women usually stay out of the sun to avoid tanning. Nothing need be done when the white patches are on areas that do not show.

A chemical remedy (psoralen) was introduced 10 years ago with variable results. It is of no value for some victims of vitiligo. Others develop new pigment but lose it after the product is stopped. A few who develop new pigment retain it through the winter so that each year more melanin can be added. In all, approximately 50 per cent obtain an appreciable amount of new pigment.

The psoralens must be used according to directions. They sensitize the skin to ultraviolet rays and usually are taken internally, followed in two hours by a short period of exposure to the sun. The sensitized skin responds quickly and will burn if exposed too long. The skin darkens within a short time.

This method of getting a quick tan is utilized also by persons who burn easily and is recommended when the risk of using a chemical of this type is justified. The white patches may burn slightly during the first treatment but this is less likely to occur as the patches darken.

TOMORROW: Cell changes in cancer.

BEANS ARE SAFE
J. L. writes: A while ago I read that if a person eats beans several times a day, blood poisoning will develop in time. I love beans, especially string beans, so am worried. I asked several of my teachers and they don't know but have become troubled about the possibility also. Do you think blood poisoning could develop from eating beans?

Secretary Of Defense, Air Force General Investigate Each Other

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Playing Pentagon Peekaboo, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and his scowling Air Force chief, Gen. Curtis Le May, recently completed an investigation of each other that ended in a stand-off.

Both men sent their gumshoes prowling through the Pentagon, like television heavies, seeking incriminating evidence on one another.

What started all the snooping was an article which Richard Fryklund, news sleuth for the Washington Star, had written but never published. He had shown it around the Pentagon, however, causing consternation in high places.

He had written that the military planners had set up an optional target system, a matter that wasn't supposed to be known outside the Pentagon's most secret rooms. Indeed, he had even mentioned the secret number of optional targets.

The horrified McNamara, anxious to plug a leak of classified information, ordered a watch on Fryklund's movements.

At a subsequent meeting with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, McNamara confided that the gumshoes tailing Fryklund had reported back something interesting.

They had followed him as he trudged around the Pentagon, distributing complimentary copies of a new book he had written. Most of the copies, the watchdogs had reported triumphantly, had gone to Air Force officers.

McNamara commented dryly that Fryklund's friends seemed to be in the Air Force, therefore the classified information must have come from the Air Force. "I am tired of these blanket accusations!" growled Le May. "I think it came from your office."

"All right," offered McNamara cheerfully, "you investigate my office."

Thus began the great game of Hide-and-Go-Snoop, pitting Defense Department investigators against Air Force investigators. To no one's particular surprise, they came up empty-handed.

Note—Investigating news sources has become such a popular Pentagon pastime that even the FBI has been called in on the sport. McNamara has asked the G-men to check on the sources of no less than The New York Times' distinguished military writer, Hanson Baldwin.

Refugee Racketeers
From secret State Department files, the story can now be told how Philip Bonsal, as ambassador to Cuba in 1959, tried to block the Narcotics Bureau from getting two alleged racketeers kicked out of Cuba.

In an official communique to the Cuban government, the Narcotics Bureau identified Jake Lansky and Giordano Cellini as American mobsters and asked dictator Fidel Castro to deport them.

The pair had been helping Santo Trafficante Jr., one of the top ten in the American underworld, to operate Havana's glittering, pre-Castro gambling casinos.

Only a few months earlier, Jake, brother of gang boss, Meyer Lansky, had been searched as he passed through Miami. He was carrying a brief case stuffed with $200,000 in greenbacks and $50,000 in checks.

But Ambassador Bonsal opposed the Narcotics Bureau's deportation request. A confidential State Department document gives this account of a conference that took place in the Havana Embassy on May 12, 1959.

"The ambassador stated that as a nation advocating justice and equality for all, we certainly would not act in that regard by recommending the deportation of persons such as Lansky and Cellini on the basis of meager information with no evidence to substantiate it.

"He requested that Mr. Brown (an embassy aide) forward a message to the State Department indicating the embassy's position on this matter so that steps could be taken to prevent a recurrence of such injustice."

Questions And Answers

Q—I hear Jacqueline Kennedy's huntmaster found a high-paying tenant to rent out the Glen Ora estate for the summer. What's the inside story?—B. H. Warren, Va.

A—The First Lady leased Glen Ora originally through Charles Turner Jr., a real estate agent, who is also master of the hunt. Turner belongs to one of Virginia's proud old families, but the family fortune is running low. So he is obliged to make a dignified living. He was too reserved, however, to approach Mrs. Kennedy about subletting Glen Ora, though he knew Mrs. Paul Entenman, a New York socialite, wanted to rent it for the summer. Result: Mrs. Entenman arranged the lease through another broker, and Jackie's huntmaster lost the commission. The first family is collecting a reported $2,000 a month rent.

Q—Why don't you investigate the use of a Navy plane to fly 25 political hacks from Venice to Pensacola at the taxpayers' expense?—J. L. C., Venice, Fla.

A—The Navy is providing a free plane to fly 25 "civic leaders" from Venice to Pensacola this week for a two-day orientation visit aboard the aircraft carrier Antietam.

Geography Lesson

Alaskan Sen. Bob Bartlett is curious about the geography taught in Florida. Although sunny Florida and chilly Alaska have little in common, he was startled to receive a letter from a Florida junior high school student addressed to the "Alaskan embassy, Washington, D. C."

The student explained that he was preparing for a course this fall on foreign countries.

"I would greatly appreciate," he wrote, "the following information: dating customs, arranged marriages, native foods, native dress, family relations (compared with the U. S.), teen-age activities, education, fads, and religious beliefs."

Thinking Machines

By Richard L. Worsnop

WASHINGTON — Jonathan Swift described in Gulliver's Travels a "Project for improving speculative Knowledge by practical and mechanical Operations." A professor in the Grand Academy of Lagado in the land of Laputa had constructed a machine which produced fragments of sentences at random. By piecing the fragments together, he hoped "to give the World a complete Body of all Arts and Sciences."

Swift's object was to ridicule the pretensions of science, but science has now turned the tables on Swift. Today's electronic computers are capable of composing verse, playing checkers, and solving in minutes or hours problems that would require a lifetime of work by several scientists. Tomorrow's machines, it is said, will be able to write "meaningful and relevant sentences in proper English" and to carry on conversations.

In their present state of development, computers are far being "electronic brains." They cannot even add two and two unless told how to do so by a human operator. However, it is erroneous to suppose that there will always be a wide gap between human and artificial intelligence. Scientists now look toward development of computers that store experience as well as facts. When confronted with a problem, such machines would choose their own way of solving it.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD. — Sean Flynn, Bergerac finally comes into his own in the title role of "Achilles." He's so good, in fact, he has turned down a number of films in Italy, France and Spain, holding out for a really big deal. Jacques believes the release of "Achilles" will give his career a whole big shot in the heel.

Big night on the winter social season looms with the west coast premiere of "Lawrence of Arabia" on Dec. 20 at the Stanley Warner Beverly Hills Theatre. Does that seem a long time away? Not to the hard-working ladies of the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Women's Guild, headed by Mrs. Bertram Allenberg. They work like beavers each year to make their premieres a stupendous success. Last year's raised "West Side Story" raised $115,000 for their free bed care at Cedars.

"Lawrence of Arabia," the Sam Spiegel-David Lean production, is one of the "Big Three" spectacles of the year, the others being "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Cleopatra." The London premiere of "Lawrence" on Dec. 10 will be attended by Queen Elizabeth.

Producer-director Roger Corman, also known as the Edgar Allen Poe man of movies ("House of Usher," "Pit and the Pendulum," "Tales of Terror"), will change pace from Poe to GO. His next is a sports car race story, "Glorious Trails."

Corman is flagging down British actor Jack Hawkins to play Norman Garrad, dean of automobile competition managers who supervises the Rootes Motor Race. Garrad, a former race driver who survived the perils of the track, has a double job—to win for Rootes with such cars as the sporty Sunbeam Alpine, and to promote races by "improving the breed" I guess you'd call it.

Elvis Presley's mentor, Col. Tom Parker, from the deep south, Ma'am, continues to be my favorite listen-and-quote-man.

Had occasion to check the good colonel the other day about a $700,000 offer made to Elvis by Sumed-Aref for 25 personal appearances in the British Isles.

"Yes," drawled the Colonel, "such an offer was canvased."

And what is the answer? "Don't know yet," said the guiding financial light, "he didn't say anything about transportation."

Jacques Bergerac's reason for turning down a tempting deal for "55 Days at Peking" is: "It was another stereotyped Frenchman part. I'm sick of them. Before being a Frenchman I am a man."

Hobo Show Is Set At Playground

A hobo party is scheduled for Pennsylvania Avenue Playground Wednesday at 7 p. m.

Prizes will be awarded to the most original costume, best equipped hobo's bag and the funniest costume. A prize will be awarded also to the adult who is best dressed as a hobo.

Mrs. Gelia Puffenberger, playground director, said swimming lessons have been completed. Sixty-five playground members participated in the program.

Parents will meet with the playlot leader Friday at 8 p. m. to discuss plans for a closing party.

The children will visit South End Branch Library Thursday at 1 p. m. for the story hour.

Fay Whitman and Mary Ketterman represented the playground in the Intra-City Stunt Night.

Mrs. Marian Wilson, craft director, visited the playlot to demonstrate crafts. Articles are being completed for the Intra-City Craft Exhibit to be held this week.

Richard Wertz won the newspaper sale. He is still leading the total sales.

Winners of the stuffed animal show held recently were Richard Wertz, Larry Suna, Timmy Tower and Carla Easton.

Total registration at Pennsylvania Avenue is 402, Mrs. Puffenberger said.

Dairy Farms Being Tested

The U. S. Public Health Department is conducting its annual check on dairies who produce milk for the Allegany County milkshed.

Gaylord Brooks, chief sanitarian for Allegany County, said the check is being conducted by Ward Barstow, public health inspector.

Mr. Barstow is expected to be in this area for two weeks and will check approximately 70 farms in Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania during that time.

As a part of the annual inspection, Mr. Barstow will check all the dairy plants to see if they are conforming to the policies of the health department.

Seeking the position are Nicola Francasso, Ralph R. Guy, Jerome D. Leffey, Russell W. McBee, Louis W. Nasser and Allan L. Schaeffer.

After looking into the qualifications of the applicants, the commission will designate three as eligible for the appointment. Any one of the three could be appointed by President Kennedy, subject to Senate confirmation.

Russell W. McBee has been serving as acting postmaster since the retirement recently of Thomas V. McGuire.

Salary for the position is $5,790 a year.

Here's the skin treatment to give your back as radiant and glowing a complexion as your face!

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Complexion Beauty For Your Back

There are times—when wearing décolletage, sun dress and swim suit—when the loveliness of your back's complexion is as important as that of your face.

The neck, shoulders and back are easy to keep in about-face condition. All you need is a little equipment and a good will. Mix equal parts of your lubricant and cleanser. Secure the sponge to the brush and saturate it with your mixture. During your bath or shower, after your soap lathering, massage your neck, shoulders and upper arms with the treated sponge for about three minutes. Then, rinse, remove the sponge from your brush.

Ann Landers . . . Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Just before I left but I decided against word to that old goat who said he had outgrown his wife, and compared her with a pair of shoes:

Old geezers don't outgrow shoes — they wear them out. And that's probably what happened to his wife.

My husband and I married young and started with nothing. I worked alongside him for 20 years. In addition to keeping a home and raising the children I matched him hour for hour in the business. As I look back I don't know how I did it all. After our children were raised and we didn't have to worry about money, he began to fancy himself a ladies' man. He fell for a girl young enough to be his daughter. I told him if he wanted to make a fool of himself to go ahead.

Within three months he was back. The new shoes almost crippled him. He begged me to forgive him, and I did. Now he is behaving himself and I'm sure he's happy to have his comfortable shoes back.—NUFF SAID

DEAR NUFF: A low bow to you for having the maturity and courage to sweat out your husband's second childhood. Most women would have given this heel the boot.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a boy 16 and never liked a girl until I met Mary. She came from another school last year and I fell for her right away. Lots of other guys fell for her, too. She is very popular.

I was afraid to ask her out because I didn't want to get turned down. A few weeks ago I was invited to a picnic and hayride and was told to bring a date. I got up the nerve and asked Mary to go with me. When she said yes I was on top of the world.

I wanted to make our first date a great one so I decided to surprise her with a gift. I bought a very nice bracelet and had her initials engraved on it.

Yesterday she called to say she changed her mind because she didn't think she liked me well enough to spend a whole afternoon and evening with me. I was very disappointed.

Should I give her the bracelet anyway? It has her initials on it and I don't have any use for it now.—B

DEAR B: Don't give her the bracelet. Keep it as a reminder—in case you're tempted to go overboard for another doll.

A gift on a first date makes no sense. It would have appeared that you were trying to buy the girl's affections. So, in a way you're lucky she broke the date. It saved you from making a foolish blunder.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm no kid (26) and always thought I knew the answers. Now I'm stumped and my head is breaking from all the advice that is being poured on from relatives.

I was in love with a beautiful girl before I went into the service. She wanted to get married

One-Way Plan Adopted For Street, Alley

An order providing for one-way traffic on a West Side street and alley was approved by the Mayor and Council yesterday.

Affected were Smallwood Street and Spruce Alley.

The order provides that Smallwood Street will be one-way for vehicles traveling from Fayette to Cumberland Street.

Spruce Alley is to be one-way for vehicles traveling from Cumberland Street to Avirett Avenue.

On another traffic matter, Thomas L. Smith, of Super Concrete Company, recalled a previous appearance before council to complain about the traffic bottleneck at the Henderson Avenue-Frederick Street intersection. He suggested a traffic light be installed there.

Police Commissioner William V. Keegan said the department had requested "Don't block the intersection signs" from the State Roads Commission and has a policeman at the intersection during peak periods a couple of days a week to expedite traffic.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said that as a result of studies made, as long as the B&O Railroad must use the area for shifting facilities which necessitates blocking both Frederick and Bedford Streets, a traffic light at the point in question would not be practical.

In his report on department activities last month, Commissioner Keegan said 291 arrests were made and fines amounted to $1,406.50. The Fire Department had 25 fire calls and damage was minor.

Left Turn Light Helps Move Traffic

Traffic at the intersection of Baltimore and North Centre streets was moving satisfactorily yesterday after an "advance green" signal was provided for left turns.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said a "left only" sign was to be placed at the signal light during the night.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD. — Sean Flynn, Bergerac finally comes into his own in the title role of "Achilles." He's so good, in fact, he has turned down a number of films in Italy, France and Spain, holding out for a really big deal. Jacques believes the release of "Achilles" will give his career a whole big shot in the heel.

But they hadn't counted on a baby being born. Mrs. Jeanne Pizzo started up the aisle, didn't make the door, and little Miss Jocelyn Pizzo arrived in this world in the theatre foyer.

The Cannes papers made a big do about "Little Miss Movie." The only way it could have stirred up more publicity was for Jocelyn to have been a boy to tie in with the title. And then they'd probably have called it a publicity stunt.

Anyway, Sean has offered to be godfather to little Miss Movie.

I hope enormously rich Howard Ahmanson and Rhonda Fleming don't think their quiet dating and suddenly serious interest in each other is any part of a secret. With his money and her red-haired beauty they're easily spotted even in the quieter dining spots they seem to prefer.

You'd need an IBM machine to tally the very good looking Ahmanson's worth. He recently gave a million dollars cash to a local college he heads one of the largest savings and loans organizations, and his art collection is fabulous. Well, come to think of it, Rhonda's something of a work of art herself.

Elvis Presley's mentor, Col. Tom Parker, from the south, Ma'am, continues to be my favorite listen-and-quote-man.

Had occasion to check the good colonel the other day about a $700,000 offer made to Elvis by Sumed Aref for 25 personal appearances in the British Isles.

"Yes," drawled the Colonel, "such an offer was cabled."

And what is the answer? "Don't know yet," said the guiding financial light, "he didn't say anything about transportation."

Jacques Bergerac's reason for turning down a tempting deal for "55 Days at Peking" is: "It was another stereotyped Frenchman part. I'm sick of them. Before being a Frenchman I am a man."

Hobo Show Is Set At Playground

A hobo party is scheduled for Pennsylvania Avenue Playground Wednesday at 7 p. m.

Prizes will be awarded to the most original costume, best equipped hobo's bag and the funniest costume. A prize will be awarded also to the adult who is best dressed as a hobo.

Mrs. Gelia Puffenberger, playground director, said swimming lessons have been completed. Sixty-five playground members participated in the program.

Parents will meet with the playlot leader Friday at 8 p. m. to discuss plans for a closing party.

The children will visit South End Branch Library Thursday at 1 p. m. for the story hour.

Fay Whitman and Mary Ketterman represented the playground in the Intra-City Stunt Night.

Mrs. Marian Wilson, craft director, visited the playlot to demonstrate crafts. Articles are being completed for the Intra-City Craft Exhibit to be held this week.

Richard Wertz won the newspaper sale. He is still leading the total sales.

Winners of the stuffed animal show held recently were Richard Wertz, Larry Suna, Timmy Tower and Carla Easton.

Total registration at Pennsylvania Avenue is 402, Mrs. Puffenberger said.

Dairy Farms Being Tested

The U. S. Public Health Department is conducting its annual check on dairies who produce milk for the Allegany County milkshed.

Gaylord Brooks, chief sanitarian for Allegany County, said the check is being conducted by Ward Barstow, public health inspector. Mr. Barstow is expected to be in this area for two weeks and will check approximately 70 farms in Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania during that time.

As a part of the annual inspection, Mr. Barstow will check all the dairy plants to see if they are conforming to the policies of the health department.

Shoe Show Planned At Mapleside Playlot

A shoe show will be held at the Mapleside Playground on Wednesday, and prizes will be awarded for the largest, smallest, most unusual, prettiest and oldest.

The Pre-Teen Club, which met Thursday to make plans for an outing at the Amelle pool, will meet tomorrow at 4 p. m., said Linda Jean Dicken, president.

This past Wednesday a button show was held at the playlot. Winners were Cindy Crosser, largest; Debbie Slaton, smallest; Agnes Whitacre, prettiest; Mark Deneen, largest collection and Butch Fabbri, most unusual.

Mary Lou Fairall had the largest hat in a hat show Friday afternoon. Other winners were Mark Deneen, most unusual; Trinka Deneen, funniest, and Cindy Crosser, the prettiest.

Here's the skin treatment to give your back as radiant and glowing a complexion as your face!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers
Complexion Beauty For Your Back

There are times—when wearing décolletage, sun dress and swimsuit—when the loveliness of your back's complexion is as important as that of your face.

The neck, shoulders and back are easy to keep in about-face condition. All you need is a little equipment and a good will. The total equipment consists of the familiar, long-handled back brush covered with a soft rubber sponge, a piece of white string for tying the sponge to the brush, a grainy cleanser, and a lubricant (body oil, baby lotion or a medicated cream if the skin is blemished).

Mix equal parts of your lubricant and cleanser. Secure the sponge to the brush and saturate it with your mixture. During your bath or shower, after your soap lathering, massage your neck, shoulders and upper arms with the treated sponge for about three minutes. Then, rinse, remove the sponge from your brush.

When your bath is complete, clean the sponge and attach it again to the brush. Saturate it with your lubricant (no cleanser this time) and cover every inch of your back. Lie face down for fifteen minutes to allow for a "soak in."

For the extra-special evening, use your sponge-brush combination again at make-up time. Take your well-cleansed and wrung-out sponge and dip it into the foundation that you use on your face and smooth it over your back, neck, shoulders, and arms. Let it dry and don't be alarmed if it's streaky. You can blend the streaks by pulling a Turkish towel evenly across and up and down your back. The remaining film will be smooth and won't rub off on your clothes or your dancing partner's.

DRY SKIN? OILY SKIN? NORMAL SKIN? No matter what your skin type, John Robert Powers' booklet, "Secrets of Skin Care," can help you to achieve new skin beauty. A copy of this pint-sized problem solver is as near as your mailbox when you send 10c to Mr. Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Seeking the position are Nicola Francasso, Ralph R. Guy, Jerome D. Lefey, Russell W. McBee, Louis W. Nasser and Allan L. Schaeffer.

Russell W. McBee has been serving as acting postmaster since the retirement recently of Thomas V. McGuire.

Meters To Give Hour Parking

About 100 downtown parking meters have been changed to permit half-hour parking for a nickel, or a full hour for a dime, Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan announced.

He said the previous half-hour limit on some meters have been found to be too short. Other meters provide two-hour or five-hour parking at the rate of a nickel an hour.

The "courtesy meters" have been reinstalled at Police Headquarters and at South End Fire Station. Drivers who take their tickets to either place within an hour after issuance may put a quarter in the courtesy meter rather than pay a fine, provided the tickets are for overtime parking on meters.

On another traffic matter, Thomas L. Smith, of Super Concrete Company, recalled a previous appearance before council to complain about the traffic bottleneck at the Henderson Avenue-Frederick Street intersection. He is to go out to keep from going suggested a traffic light be installed there.

Police Commissioner William V. Keegan said the department had requested "Don't block the intersection signs" from the State Roads Commission and has a policeman at the intersection during peak periods a couple of days a week to expedite traffic.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said that as a result of studies made, as long as the B&O Railroad must use the area for shifting facilities which necessitates blocking both Frederick and Bedford Streets, a traffic light at the point in question would not be practical.

In his report on department activities last month, Commissioner Keegan said 291 arrests were made and fines amounted to $14,466.50. The Fire Department had 25 fire calls and damage was minor.

Left Turn Light Helps Move Traffic

Traffic at the intersection of Baltimore and North Centre streets was moving satisfactorily yesterday after an "advance green" signal was provided for left turns.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said a "left only" sign was to be placed at the signal light during the night.

Minnesota Edges Yankees, 5-4, To Cut A.L. Lead To Four Games

Frank Sullivan Halts New York Uprising In 8th

Yanks Drop Third Straight One-Run Decision To Twins

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Sullivan required just two pitches to halt an eighth inning New York rally and went on to pitch a scoreless ninth Monday night to give the Minnesota Twins a 5-4 victory over the Yankees.

It was the Yankees' third straight one-run defeat and sliced their American League lead over the Twins to four games.

Sullivan replaced starter and winner Dick Stigman after Roger Maris' 25th homer and successive doubles by Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard reduced the Twins' lead to one run. He retired Hector Lopez on an infield out and then got pinch-hitter Yogi Berra on an easy fly ball.

The former Philadelphia Phillie and Boston Red Sox pitcher, obtained a couple of weeks ago by the Twins, has now yielded only one earned run in 14 1-3 innings.

Minnesota's lineup was: Green, cf; 5-11; Power, 1b; 5-11; Rollins, 3b; 4-11; Killebrew, lf; 3-11; Tuller, cf; 6-00; Allison, rf; 3-12; Ratter, c; 3-12; Allen, 2b; 4-00; Vukobratovic, ss; 4-02; Stigman, p; 3-11; Sullivan, p; 1-00.

Totals: 35 5 10 5

Single for Tuller in 7th; b-Ran for Mantle in 8th; c-Flied out for Skowron in 8th; d-Walked for Arroyo in 9th; e-Ran for Blanchard in 9th.

Allen E. Goldstrom Resigns As Berkeley Springs Coach

Served Since 1953, Remains As Teacher Of Social Studies

Allen E. Goldstrom has severed his connection with the athletic program at Berkeley Springs High School after having coached at the Morgan county school since 1953, it was learned yesterday.

Goldstrom's resignation became effective July 23. He will remain as seventh and eighth grade social studies teacher.

At the time of his resignation, Goldstrom was athletic director, head football and basketball coach, and junior high basketball coach.

An effort was made to have Goldstrom retain his position as athletic director, baseball coach and junior varsity football coach but he rejected the offer. Jayvee football was started last season.

A native of Morgantown, and a graduate of West Virginia University, Goldstrom has coached baseball at Berkeley Springs since 1953. He took over the football coaching reins in 1957 when Gerard "Jerry" Calhoun left to become head coach at Beall High School. He also served as basketball coach before Gary Kerns was named in 1959. Kerns was succeeded by Max Stackhouse in 1961 and Varnell Burkhardt became coach in 1962 at Berkeley Springs last season.

Tri-State Defeats Maroons, 3-0; Deremer Decisions Williams

Lefty Bobby Deremer pitched a one-hitter to give Tri-State Memorial a 3-0 victory over the LaVale Maroons yesterday, reducing the latter's lead to one game in the Pen-Mar Little League.

The win enabled Tri-State to square the season series at two-all.

Jim Evans' leadoff single in the second was the only hit yielded by Deremer, who fanned four and notched his 5th win against two losses. Williams (10-2) gave up six hits and struck out eight.

Tri-State coupled a hit with two fielder's choices and an error for two runs in the fourth and scored its final run in the 6th on a pair of base walks.

Minnesota Edges Yankees, 5-4, To Cut A.L. Lead To Four Games

Frank Sullivan Halts New York Uprising In 8th

Yanks Drop Third Straight One-Run Decision To Twins

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Sullivan required just two pitches to halt an eighth inning New York rally and went on to pitch a scoreless ninth Monday night to give the Minnesota Twins a 5-4 victory over the Yankees.

It was the Yankees' third straight one-run defeat and sliced their American League lead over the Twins to four games.

Sullivan replaced starter and winner Dick Stigman after Roger Maris' 25th homer and successive doubles by Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard reduced the Twins' lead to one run. He retired Hector Lopez on an infield out and then got pinch-hitter Yogi Berra on an easy fly ball.

The former Philadelphia Phillie and Boston Red Sox pitcher, obtained a couple of weeks ago by the Twins, has now yielded only one earned run in 14 1/3 innings.

Allen E. Goldstrom Resigns As Berkeley Springs Coach

Served Since 1953, Remains As Teacher Of Social Studies

Allen E. Goldstrom has severed his connection with the athletic program at Berkeley Springs High School after having coached at the Morgan county school since 1953, it was learned yesterday.

Goldstrom's resignation became effective July 23. He will remain as seventh and eighth grade social studies teacher.

At the time of his resignation Goldstrom was athletic director, head football and baseball coach and junior high basketball coach. An effort was made to have Goldstrom retain his position as athletic director, baseball coach and junior varsity football coach but he rejected the offer. Jayvee football was started last season.

A native of Morgantown, and a graduate of West Virginia University, Goldstrom has coached baseball at Berkeley Springs since 1953. He took over the football coaching reins in 1957 when Gerard "Jerry" Calhoun left to become head coach at Beall High School. He also served as basketball coach before Gary Kerns was named in 1959. Kerns was succeeded by Max Stackhouse in 1961 and Varnell Burkhardt became manager at Berkeley Springs last season.

Grand Jury To Be Called In Assault

Frostburg Man Faces Charges

State's Attorney James S. Getty said last night the grand jury will be called back into session Monday morning to hear evidence in the case of a 22-year-old Frostburg man who is being held in connection with the assault of an 88-year-old Frostburg woman.

The man, Robert Ball, of 115 Spring Street, Frostburg, is being held in the Allegany County Jail.

Mr. Getty said the reason he was calling the jury back in session was due to the advanced age and generally poor condition of the victim.

Ball has not been formally charged pending a report of a medical examination of the victim, Mr. Getty said.

According to investigating authorities, the woman said she was asleep at her home when Ball gained entrance through a window and sexually molested her about 4 a. m. Saturday.

Ball was arrested at the scene of the alleged attack by Frostburg Police Patrolman Edward Bevans, after the police department was notified by neighbors.

He was lodged in the city jail there until Saturday afternoon, when he was transferred to the County Jail here.

The woman was taken to Miners Hospital shortly after the alleged attack, Frostburg Police said, for examination. She was released, taken back later for additional examination, and released again.

Edwin R. Lilya, county investigator, took a statement from Ball Saturday and the young man admitted the incident.

Also investigating is Tfc. Donald R. Wade, of the Maryland State Police.

Three Added To Staff At Welfare Dept.

Women Will Serve As Case Workers

Three new case workers have joined the staff of the Allegany County Welfare Department, according to Miss Ethel Wilderman, director.

The new employees are Miss Lois Sweitzer of Shaft; Miss Mary J. Bolt, Eckhart, and Mrs. Doris Johanson, 306 Washington Street.

Miss Sweitzer, who resides with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Sweitzer, is a 1957 graduate of Beall High School and graduated from Frostburg State Teachers College in 1961 with a bachelor of science in junior high education.

While at FSTC, Miss Sweitzer served as president of her freshman and sophomore classes and was president of the Day Student Association. She also was a member of Phi Omicron Delta Sorority and the Student Congress and was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and College during her senior year.

Prior to joining the staff at the welfare board, Miss Sweitzer taught the eighth grade at Westminster Junior High for one year.

Miss Bolt is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Bolt of Eckhart and was graduated from Ursuline Academy in June 1958. This past June she received her B.A. degree in biology at Mount Saint Agnes College in Baltimore.

During the summer of 1961, Miss Bolt worked as a case aide at the Allegany County Welfare Board.

Mrs. Johanson is the former Doris Stitley of Oskaloosa, Iowa, and received her B.S. degree at Iowa State University in 1960, where she majored in home economics and child development.

Her husband, Jerald A. Johanson, is an electrical-mechanical engineer at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

Cable Shorts Out, Power Disrupted

Sections of Cumberland including West Side and Bedford Street were without electric power about an hour late yesterday afternoon when an underground cable shorted out in the vicinity of the Potomac Edison Company river plant in nearby Ridgeley.

A spokesman for the utility company said service was restored about an hour after the power failed in scattered sections of the city about 4:07 p. m.

He said a cable on a 10,000 kw bank transformer which feeds into the network shorted out in a conduit located underground.

A spare bank transformer was utilized in restoring service, according to the spokesman, who said workmen will have to remove the affected cable and replace it with another cable obtained at Hagerstown yesterday.

A temporary cable was strung above ground until the cable is replaced underground.

Two Injured In Carnival Ride Mishap

Two Barton youths were hospitalized last night with injuries sustained when they were hurled from a ride at a carnival in that community.

Admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser were Douglas Ford and Joseph McIntyre, who were riding together on a ride called the "Mixer-Round."

While the ride was in motion their seat flew off the frame of the equipment, according to authorities, who said the youths were hurled to the ground in the freak accident about 8 p. m.

The Ford youth reportedly sustained left leg injury and mild concussion and the McIntyre youth a head injury. Their condition last night was reported as being "satisfactory."

The seat was about three feet off the ground when the accident occurred, authorities said. The carnival which attracted a large crowd last night is being sponsored by the volunteer firemen.

The two youths were taken to the hospital in ambulances of the Eichhorn Funeral Service, Lonaconing and Boal's Funeral Home, Westernport.

Woman Killed, Four Hurt In Two-Car Crash

Two Persons "Critical"

A 50-year-old Pennsylvania woman was killed and four persons injured, two critically, yesterday morning when one car collided with another in a funeral procession on U.S. Route 40 in Garrett County about a mile and a half east of the Pennsylvania line.

Mrs. Dorothy Helen Tressler, of Queecreek, was pronounced dead at the Newman Funeral Home in Grantsville by Dr. James Feaster, medical examiner of Garrett County. She sustained a fractured skull and multiple body injuries and apparently was killed outright, said police.

Her husband, John A. Tressler, 54, driver of one of the cars, sustained a possible fractured pelvis, fractured left ankle and a laceration of his scalp and was reported in "critical" condition last night at the Meyersdale (Pa.) Community Hospital.

Also in "critical" condition at the hospital is Margaret Ellen Beeman, 52, of Vindex, who sustained a severe laceration of her scalp and was in shock when admitted.

William Champanella, 58, of Hooversville, Pa., sustained multiple lacerations and contusions and was reported in "fair" condition at the hospital.

Marion R. Self, 55-year-old Dayton, Ohio, school teacher, who was driving alone in the other car involved, suffered a fractured left upper arm and leg, severe laceration of her scalp and multiple contusions. She was reported in "serious" condition last night.

The accident occurred about 11:05 a. m., according to Maryland State Police, who said the car being operated by Mr. Tressler was traveling east on Route 40 in a funeral procession.

The car being driven by Marion Self was headed west on the highway when she apparently lost control of the car, dropped off the north shoulder and swerved across the center line into the Tressler car.

Trooper J. F. Powers was assisted in the investigation by Trooper C. E. Loeber and Sergeant Harry A. Holsinger. The injured were taken to the hospital by the Newman Funeral Home.

City Hopes To Complete Cleanup Today

Street Department crews expect today to complete the task of cleaning after the torrential rain and wind storm which hit this city Saturday afternoon.

Some 20 loads of trees, tree limbs and brush torn loose during the height of the storm were hauled away yesterday.

Another 10 loads of gravel and dirt washed down steep streets and alleys during the storm were removed.

Most of the work remaining for today will be on the West Side, including Allegany, Washington and Fayette streets, where storm damage was severe.

Apparently the most hard hit were the streets connecting Bedford and Frederick, Oldtown Road, Williams Street and the area around the Fort Hill High School stadium, Valentine said.

The Mayor and Council of Lonaconing last night instructed James S. Getty, town attorney, to prepare three new ordinances regarding stop signs, inadequate mufflers and careless driving in the town.

Mr. Getty said he would prepare the ordinances for action by the town officials at the next meeting on August 20.

In other action last night, the town council voted to contribute $500 to the Goodwill Fire Company. Mayor Harold W. Moyer will present the check to the fire company.

The Mayor and Council also received a letter from the Cherry Hill Coal Corporation rejecting the town's request to purchase or lease the Beechwood Mine area for use as a town dump.

Joe McGregor, the garbage collector for Lonaconing, notified the council he had purchased another lot to be used as a dump.

Five persons were injured last night in a two-car collision at the intersection of U. S. Route 219 and Garrett County Route 38 about six miles north of Oakland.

At least three of the persons were expected to be admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, according to Corporal Robert D. Henline, of the Maryland State Police, who was investigating the accident late last night.

Raymond William Kahl, 49, of Accident, driver of one of the cars, was taken to the emergency room of the hospital and his injuries were undetermined.

His wife, Nellie Kahl, 41, sustained facial and head injuries and it was possible she would be admitted. Their daughter, Hazel Kahl, 21, was also in her father's car although her injuries were not determined last night.

Lynn T. Browning, 67, of Deer Park, who had both knee caps fractured, according to police was expected to be admitted. He was a passenger in the other car driven by Bruce T. Browning, 80, of Deer Park, who was not expected to be admitted. He had a laceration of his left hand.

County Issues 71 Building Permits In July

Cost Total Below Same 1961 Period

Although some 71 building permits were issued during July at the Allegany County Court House there are signs of a tapering off of building activity in anticipation of the approaching fall season.

The number of building permits issued by C. Lee Renaud, county planning director, and James G. Stevenson, clerk to the county commissioners, was the third highest for 1962, having been topped by both May and June. However, the $311,352 total estimated cost of construction was only the fifth highest monthly figure of 1962 and the lowest since March's $233,850. January's $222,145 was the lowest monthly total so far this year.

The 71 July permits were 18 more than were issued in July 1961. However, in total estimated cost, July a year ago was a healthy $137,373 ahead with $448,725.

July's building permit activity sent the total estimated cost of construction above the $3,000,000 mark with five months still remaining in 1962. The seven-month totals are 369 permits in the unincorporated areas of the county for construction which the usually-conservative builders estimate will cost a total of $3,213,447 to construct. These totals are 82 permits and $1,382,180 above the 287 permits and $1,831,267 total for the first seven months of 1961.

The 71 July building permits authorized work in 25 election districts of the county. Election District 7 in the Cresaptown-Rawlings area was the July leader with 11 permits. Election District 29 in LaVale was second with nine permits. Mr. Stevenson issues permits for District 29, the only district in the unincorporated portions of the county not covered by the county's interim zoning ordinance. LaVale has its own zoning regulations, which have been effective since May 1, 1958.

Other election districts with more than one July building permit included District 6, West Side suburban, six; District 16, North Branch, five; Districts 2, Oldtown; 3, Flintstone, and 13, Mt. Savage, four each; Districts 5, North End suburban; 9, Barton; 12, Frostburg suburban; 20, Ellerslie-Corrigansville, three each; Districts 21, Gross, and 27, Gilmore, two each.

There were single building permits last month for Election Districts 1, Little Orleans; 8, West-ernport suburban; 11, Frostburg suburban; 15, Lonaconing; 17, Vale Summit; 18, Midland; 19, Shaft; 22, East Side suburban; 24, Eckhart; 30, Zihlman; 31, McCoole, and 33, Kiefer.

Twenty-eight of the July permits authorized construction of new dwellings. There also were nine for dwelling additions, five for garages, four for dwelling alterations, four for enclosing porches, three for summer camps and two each for foundations under dwellings, replacing garages and building storage sheds.

There also were single permits issued in July for a storage room, storage building, carport, addition to foundation, replacing garage and building apartment over it, Huttonsville Monday Security Prison.

State Public Institutions Commissioner Chancey Browning Jr. said in Charleston the first two trustees held while preparing to can sauerkraut. He identified them as Roy Hale, 35, serving a 1-to-10 year sentence on a forgery conviction from Mingo County, and Charles Junior Crawford, 21, serving a 1-to-10 year term on an auto theft conviction from Mineral County. Both were received at the prison in June.

Browning said the other four who fled about 1½-hours later were hoeing corn on the prison farm along U. S. 219, some two miles from the scene of the first escape.

The four were identified as Sherman Roy Underwood, 20, serving 1-to-10 on a Harrison County grand larceny conviction Benny Mullins, 21, sentenced from McDowell County to 10-to-10 years for grand larceny; Edward Lee Campbell, 19, serving 1-to-10 month at Wheeling, will be given for a Harrison County breaking and entering conviction, and Ray a regular meeting of Knobley Junior Van Dale, 23, 2-to-15, on Mountain Post 136, American Legion, in Ridgeley.

Monthly totals for the first seven months of 1961: January — nine permits and $49,525; February — four and $27,000; March — 39 and $297,975; April — 49 and $267,650; May — 64 and $401,087; June — 63 and $319,305; and July — 53 and $448,725.

Monthly totals for the first seven months of 1962: January — 20 and $222,145; February — 28 and $625,700; March — 24 and $233,850; April — 63 and $593,325; May 81 and $667,550; June — 82 and $559,525; and July — 71 and $311,352.

Legion Meets Today

A report on the state convention of the West Virginia Department, American Legion, held last month at Wheeling, will be given this evening at 8 o'clock during a regular meeting of Knobley Junior Van Dale, 23, 2-to-15, on Mountain Post 136, American Legion, in Ridgeley.

Mayor To Push City Manager Study Proposal

Says Coordinator Is Badly Needed

Mayor Earl D. Chaney said yesterday he has become more convinced than ever, during his first month in office, that the Council-Manager form of government is badly needed in Cumberland.

He said he feels that if citizens understood the problems of operating the city under the present form of government, they would know how badly a change is needed.

The most urgent need, he said, is for someone to serve as a coordinator for the various departments of the city.

He said he is not against individuals in the present setup, but feels that the city definitely needs someone to coordinate the facilities of all departments.

Referring to the defeat of the Council-Manager proposal in the recent municipal election, Mayor Chaney said he feels that an improved plan were properly explained to the citizens, it would be adopted.

Loses By 112 Votes

The proposal was rejected by a vote of 2,131 For to 2,019 Against in the June 19 municipal election.

In his inaugural speech, Mayor Chaney announced he planned to follow through on a proposal by the former administration which called for setting up a commission to study and recommend what, if any, change in the form of government might be needed here.

He has been authorized by Council to proceed with plans for the committee and is expected to proceed in the near future.

Mayor Chaney said he wants "good citizens, good thinking people," on the committee.

Offers Aid

Help on the study of a new plan of government has been offered to Mayor Chaney by William White, Dan Diego, Calif.

Mr. White, a former councilman of San Diego, and a native of Cumberland, came here recently for a visit and presented the key of that city to then Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

Mayor Chaney got to know Mr. White well during his visit to Cumberland and Mr. White promised to send anything his city might have about the Council-Manager form of government, and to provide any other help needed on city administration.

He recently forwarded to Mayor Chaney a copy of the July 17 issue of San Diego's Evening Tribune, which includes an account of the preliminary report of the Citizens Charter Review Committee.

The committee has recommended nearly 100 changes in the city charter.

It recommended that San Diego retain its Council-Manager form of government, but strengthen the position of the mayor.

Seek Title Change

The second recommendation was that the city should remove from the charter all language describes the city manager as "chief executive" and replace it with the "chief administrator."

Another recommendation called for increasing the size of the council to nine members, who could employ or remove the city manager by a simple majority vote.

It also recommended that a provision be included in the charter stating it is the duty of councilmen to attend all meetings, and stipulate that absence from half of the scheduled meetings in any month would vacate the seat of the member unless absence is excused by resolution of the council.

Mr. White is expected to keep Mayor Chaney informed on the progress made by San Diego in overhauling its charter as a result of the nine-month study of the commission.

Mineral County Man Among Four Escapees

HUTTONSVILLE, W. Va. (UPI) — First two and then four inmates escaped Monday from the Huttonsville Medium Security Prison.

State Public Institutions Commissioner Chancey Browning Jr. said in Charleston the first two trustees held while preparing to can sauerkraut. He identified them as Roy Hale, 35, serving a 1-to-10 year sentence on a forgery conviction from Mingo County, and Charles Junior Crawford, 21, serving a 1-to-10 year term on an auto theft conviction from Mineral County. Both were received at the prison in June.

Grand Jury To Be Called In Assault

Frostburg Man Faces Charges

State's Attorney James S. Getty said last night the grand jury will be called back into session Monday morning to hear evidence in the case of a 22-year-old Frostburg man who is being held in connection with the assault on an 88-year-old Frostburg woman.

The man, Robert Ball, of 115 Spring Street, Frostburg, is being held in the Allegany County Jail.

Mr. Getty said the reason he was calling the jury back in session was due to the advanced age and generally poor condition of the victim.

Ball has not been formally charged pending a report of a medical examination of the victim, Mr. Getty said.

According to investigating authorities, the woman said she was asleep at her home when Ball gained entrance through a window and sexually molested her about 4 a. m. Saturday.

Ball was arrested at the scene of the alleged attack by Frostburg Police Patrolman Edward Bevens, after the police department was notified by neighbors.

He was lodged in the city jail there until Saturday afternoon, when he was transferred to the County Jail here.

The woman was taken to Miners Hospital shortly after the alleged attack, Frostburg Police said, for examination. She was released, taken back later for additional examination, and released again.

Edwin R. Lila, county investigator, took a statement from Ball Saturday and the young man admitted the incident.

Also investigating is Tfc. Donald R. Wade, of the Maryland State Police.

Three Added To Staff At Welfare Dept.

Women Will Serve As Case Workers

Three new case workers have joined the staff of the Allegany County Welfare Department, according to Miss Ethel Wilderman, director.

The new employees are Miss Lois Sweitzer of Shaft; Miss Mary J. Bolt, Eckhart, and Mrs. Doris Johanson, 306 Washington Street.

While at FSTC, Miss Sweitzer served as president of her freshman and sophomore classes and was president of the Day Student Association. She also was a member of Phi Omicron Delta Sorority and the Student Congress and was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and College during her senior year.

Prior to joining the staff at the welfare board, Miss Sweitzer taught the eighth grade at Westminster Junior High for one year.

Miss Bolt is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Bolt of Eckhart and was graduated from Ursuline Academy in June 1958. This past June she received her B.A. degree in biology at Mount Saint Agnes College in Baltimore.

During the summer of 1961, Miss Bolt worked as a case aide at the Allegany County Welfare Board.

Cable Shorts Out, Power Disrupted

Sections of Cumberland including West Side and Bedford Street were without electric power about an hour late yesterday afternoon when an underground cable shorted out in the vicinity of the Potomac Edison Company river plant in nearby Ridgeley.

A spokesman for the utility company said service was restored about an hour after the power failed in scattered sections of the city about 4:07 p. m.

He said a cable on a 10,000 kw bank transformer which feeds into the network shorted out in a conduit located underground.

A spare bank transformer was utilized in restoring service, according to the spokesman, who said workmen will have to remove the affected cable and replace it with another cable obtained at Hagerstown yesterday.

A temporary cable was strung above ground until the cable is replaced underground.

Firemen said the fire in the truck was out when they arrived but that Lee Fazenbaker, driver of the truck owned by the Orrie Sensabaugh contracting firm, suffered first and second burns on the left hand.

They said the blaze occurred when gasoline leaking from a settlement on a gas line ignited as it hit the hot motor.

South Cumberland Fire Company was called to 502 Montreal Avenue yesterday morning to quench an automobile fire, and West Side Fire Company extinguished a grass fire on Wills Creek Avenue.

Two Persons "Critical"

A 50-year-old Pennsylvania woman was killed and four persons injured, two critically, yesterday morning when one car collided with another in a funeral procession on U.S. Route 40 in Garrett County about a mile and a half east of the Pennsylvania line.

Mrs. Dorothy Helen Tressler, of Queecreek, was pronounced dead at the Newman Funeral Home in Grantsville by Dr. James Feaster, medical examiner of Garrett County. She sustained a fractured skull and multiple body injuries and apparently was killed outright, said police.

Her husband, John A. Tressler, 54, driver of one of the cars, sustained a possible fractured pelvis, fractured left ankle and a laceration of his scalp and was reported in "critical" condition last night at the Meyersdale (Pa.) Community Hospital.

Also in "critical" condition at the hospital is Margaret Ellen Beeman, 52, of Vinex, who sustained a severe laceration of her scalp and was in shock when admitted.

The accident occurred about 11:05 a. m., according to Maryland State Police, who said the car being operated by Mr. Tressler was traveling east on Route 40 in a funeral procession.

The car being driven by Marion Self was headed west on the highway when she apparently lost control of the car, dropped off the north shoulder and swerved across the center line into the Tressler car.

Trooper J. F. Powers was assisted in the investigation by Trooper C. E. Loeber and Sergeant Harry A. Holsinger. The injured were taken to the hospital by the Newman Funeral Home.

Another 10 loads of gravel and dirt washed down steep streets and alleys during the storm were removed.

Most of the work remaining for today will be on the West Side, including Allegany, Washington and Fayette streets, where storm damage was severe.

Apparently the most hard hit were the streets connecting Bedford and Frederick, Oldtown Road, Williams Street and the area around the Fort Hill High School stadium, Valentine said.

County Issues 71 Building Permits In July

Cost Total Below Same 1961 Period

Although some 71 building permits were issued during July at the Allegany County Court House there are signs of a tapering off of building activity in anticipation of the approaching fall season.

The number of building permits issued by C. Lee Renaud, county planning director, and James G. Stevenson, clerk to the county commissioners, was the third highest for 1962, having been topped by both May and June.

However, the $311,352 total estimated cost of construction was only the fifth highest monthly figure of 1962 and the lowest since March's $233,850. January's $222,145 was the lowest monthly total so far this year.

The 71 July permits were 18 more than were issued in July 1961. However, in total estimated cost, July a year ago was a healthy $137,373 ahead with $448,725.

July's building permit activity sent the total estimated cost of construction above the $3,000,000 mark with five months still remaining in 1962. The seven-month totals are 369 permits in the unincorporated areas of the county for construction which the usually-conservative builders estimate will cost a total of $2,313,447 to construct. These totals are 82 permits and $1,382,180 above the 287 permits and $1,831,267 total for the first seven months of 1961.

The 71 July building permits authorized work in 25 election districts of the county. Election District 7 in the Cresaptown-Rawlings area was the July leader with 11 permits. Election District 29 in LaVale was second with nine permits. Mr. Stevenson issues permits for District 29, the only district in the unincorporated portions of the county not covered by the county's interim zoning ordinance. LaVale has its own zoning regulations, which have been effective since May 1, 1958.

Other election districts with more than one July building permit included District 6, West Side suburban, six; District 16, North Branch, five; Districts 2, Oldtown, three; Districts 5, 9, Barton, two; Districts 1, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71.

There were single building permits last month for Election Districts 1, Little Orleans, 8, West-ernport suburban, 11, Frostburg suburban, 15, Lonaconing, 17, Vale Summit, 18, Midland, 19, Shaft, 22, East Side suburban, 24, Eckhart, 30, Zihlman, 31, Mc-Cool, and 33, Kifer.

Twenty-eight of the July permits authorized construction of new dwellings. There also were nine for dwelling additions, five for garages, four for dwelling alterations, four for enclosing porches, three for summer camps and two each for foundations under dwellings, replacing garages and building storage sheds.

There also were single permits issued in July for a storage room, storage building, carport, addition to foundation, replacing garage and building apartment over it, garage and swimming pool, building porch, rebuild burned portion of house, rebuild a kitchen, swimming pool, surplus storage building and store.

Monthly totals for the first seven months of 1961:

January — nine permits and $49,525; February — four and $27,000; March — 39 and $297,975; April — 49 and $267,650; May — 64 and $401,087; June — 60 and $319,305; and July — 53 and $448,725.

Monthly totals for the first seven months of 1962:

January — 20 and $222,145; February — 28 and $625,700; March — 24 and $233,850; April — 63 and $593,325; May 81 and $667,550; June — 82 and $559,325; and July — 71 and $311,352.

Mayor To Push City Manager Study Proposal

Says Coordinator Is Badly Needed

Mayor Earl D. Chaney said yesterday he has become more convinced than ever, during his first month in office, that the Council-Manager form of government is badly needed in Cumberland.

He said he feels that if citizens understood the problems of operating the city under the present form of government, they would know how badly a change is needed.

The most urgent need, he said, is for someone to serve as a coordinator for the various departments of the city.

He said he is not against individuals in the present setup, but feels that the city definitely needs someone to coordinate the facilities of all departments.

Referring to the defeat of the Council-Manager proposal in the recent municipal election, Mayor Chaney said he feels that if an improved plan were properly explained to the citizens, it would be adopted.

The proposal was rejected by a vote of 2,131 For to 2,019 Against in the June 19 municipal election.

In his inaugural speech, Mayor Chaney announced he planned to follow through on a proposal by the former administration which called for setting up a commission to study and recommend what, if any, change in the form of government might be needed here.

He has been authorized by Council to proceed with plans for the committee and is expected to proceed in the near future.

Mayor Chaney said he wants "good citizens, good thinking people," on the committee.

Help on the study of a new plan of government has been offered to Mayor Chaney by William White, Dan Diego, Calif.

Mr. White, a former councilman of San Diego, and a native of Cumberland, came here recently for a visit and presented the key of that city to then Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

Mayor Chaney got to know Mr. White well during his visit to Cumberland and Mr. White promised to send anything his city might have about the Council-Manager form of government, and to provide any other help needed on city administration.

He recently forwarded to Mayor Chaney a copy of the July 17 issue of San Diego's Evening Tribune, which includes an account of the preliminary report of the Citizens Charter Review Committee.

The committee has recommended nearly 100 changes in the city charter.

It recommended that San Diego retain its Council-Manager form of government, but strengthen the position of the mayor.

The second recommendation was that the city should remove from the charter all language describing the city manager as "chief executive" and replace it with the "chief administrator."

Another recommendation called for increasing the size of the council to nine members, who could employ or remove the city manager by a simple majority vote.

It also recommended that a provision be included in the charter stating it is the duty of councilmen to attend all meetings, and stipulate that absence from half of the scheduled meetings in any month would vacate the seat of the member unless absence is excused by resolution of the council.

Mr. White is expected to keep Mayor Chaney informed on the progress made by San Diego in overhauling its charter as a result of the nine-month study of the commission.
